Oratorical Culture in Nineteenth-century America Gregory Clark, S. Michael Halloran, 1993 Gregory Clark and S Michael Halloran bring together nine essays that explore change in both the theory and the practice of rhetoric in the nineteenth century United States In their introductory essay Clark and Halloran argue that at the beginning of the nineteenth century rhetoric encompassed a neoclassical oratorical culture in which speakers articulated common values to establish consensual moral authority that directed community thought and action As the century progressed however moral authority shifted from the civic realm to the professional thus expanding participation in the community as it fragmented the community itself Clark and Halloran argue that this shift was a transformation in which rhetoric was reconceived to meet changing cultural needs Part I examines the theories and practices of rhetoric that dominated at the beginning of the century The essays in this section include Edward Everett and Neoclassical Oratory in Genteel America by Ronald F Reid The Oratorical Poetic of the historical relationships between the advertising industry and the women's movement in the United States Contributors consider the ways that advertisers encode race ethnicity gender and heteronormativity into advertising practices and messages exported around the world They further explore the ways that intersectional audiences such as women of color Latinas and lesbian and gay audiences decode reinterpret resist and subvert advertising With this book the editors and contributors address the present lack of feminist scholarship research knowledge or curriculum in advertising and begin a more honest dialogue about diversity and intersectional gender in the advertising academy as well as the advertising industry

Dying to be Beautiful Gwen Kay, 2005 Dying to Be Beautiful tells the story of how cosmetics came to be regulated in early 20th century America In 1906 the Food and Drug Administration was given the power to control food and drugs Not until 1938 were other products that went into or onto the body including cosmetics similarly regulated The intervening years saw death by depilatory and blindness by mascara and a rise in consumer and grassroots political activism This book examines who fought for regulation of these inherently feminine products and why it took so long for their goals to be achieved Book jacket

Roughing it in the Suburbs Valerie J. Korinek, 2000-12-15 Originally launched in 1928 by the 1950s and 1960s nearly two million readers every month sampled Chatelaine magazine's eclectic mixture of traditional and surprisingly unconventional articles and editorials At a time when the American women's magazine market began to flounder thanks to the advent of television Chatelaine's subscriptions expanded as did the lively debate between its pages Why In this exhilarating study of Canada's foremost women's publication in the 50s and 60s Valerie Korinek shows that while the magazine was certainly filled with advertisements that promoted domestic perfection through the endless expansion of consumer spending a number of its sections including fiction features letters and the editor's column began to contain material that subversively complicated the simple consumer recipes for affluent domesticity Articles on abortion spousal abuse and poverty proliferated alongside explicitly feminist editorials It was a potent mixture and the mail poured in both praising and criticizing the new directions at the magazine It was Chatelaine's highly interactive and participatory nature that encouraged what Korinek calls a community of readers readers that in their very response to the magazine led to its success Chatelaine did not cling to the stereotypical images of the era instead it forged ahead providing women with a variety of images ideas and critiques of women's role in society Chatelaine's dissemination of feminist ideas laid the foundation for feminism in Canada in the 1970s and after Comprehensive fascinating and full of lively debate and history Roughing it in the Suburbs provides a cultural study that weaves together a history of Chatelaine's producer's consumers and text It illustrates how the structure of the magazine's production and the composition of its editorial and business offices allowed for feminist material to infiltrate a mass market women's monthly In doing so it offers a detailed analysis of the times the issues and the national cross section of the women and sometimes men who participated in the success of a Canadian cultural landmark Winner of the Laura Jamieson Prize awarded by the Canadian Research Institute for the Advancement of
