Climate Change and Anthropos Linda Connor, 2016-02-05 Anthropos in the sense of species as well as cultures and ethics locates humans as part of much larger orders of existence fundamental when thinking about climate change This book offers a new way of exploring the significance of locality and lives in the epoch of the Anthropocene a time when humans confront the limits of our control over nature Many scholars now write about the ethics policies and politics of climate change focussing on global processes and effects The book's innovative approach to cross cultural comparison and a regionally based study explores people's experiences of environmental change and the meaning of climate change for diverse human worlds in a changing biosphere. The main study site is the Hunter Valley in southeast Australia, an ecological region defined by the Hunter River catchment, a dwelling place for many generations of people and a key location for transnational corporations focussed on the mining, burning and export of black coal. Abundant fossil fuel reserves tie Hunter people and places to the Asia Pacific, the engine room of global economic growth in the twenty-first century and the largest user of the planet's natural resources. The book analyses the nexus of place and perceptions, political economy and social organisation in situations where environmental changes are radically transforming collective worlds. Based on an anthropological approach informed by other ways of thinking about environment-people relationships, this book analyses the social and cultural dimensions of climate change holistically. Each chapter links the large scales of species and planet with small places, commodity chains, local actions, myths and values, as well as the mingled strands of dystopian imaginings and strivings for recuperative renewal in an era of transition.

Tourism Management Clare Inkson, Lynn Minnaert, 2012-04-04 This text provides a concise introduction to all the core topics of tourism management. Covering both key theory and practice, it introduces students to general management issues across the whole tourism sector in an accessible and manageable way. It integrates the themes of sustainability, internationalism, technology and globalization throughout to provide a thoroughly modern approach to the study of tourism.

The Languages of Australia R. M. W. Dixon, 2011-01-20 This ground-breaking 1980 study of over 200 Australian languages is still valuable, especially for its non-technical opening chapters.

Synthesis and Modelling of Intermittent Estuaries W.R. Cuff, M.Jr. Tomczak, 2013-06-29 This book reports on the findings of and summarizes the conclusions from the Port Hacking Estuary Project, a model-guided multidisciplinary study of an estuarine ecosystem. The Project began in 1973 at a time when it was thought that environmental problems could be solved readily by assembling a multidisciplinary team of research scientists and having them co-ordinate their research around the construction of an ecosystem model. But a decade has passed and time has not been easy on this approach. The anticipated predictive dynamic models have not been produced and bitter argument has often marred the course of such studies. Yet the need to anticipate the flow of various chemical species (carbon, oxygen, nitrogen, phosphorus, toxicants) through the environment remains; the evidence is everywhere, from fertilization of urban lakes to acid rain. The magnitude of the problem ensures that funds will continue to be made available, although with short-term variations as perceptions swing. It is thus clear that although the difficulties are great, so is the need. It is from this background that we present this book. The Port Hacking Estuary Project involved some 15-20 research scientists over a period of 5 years. The goal was to research the flow of carbon into, within and out of a small unpolluted estuary, chosen for convenience rather than for its social significance. The idea was to use the information obtained from these studies to build a predictive dynamic model.
