Land Degradation And Society:

Land Degradation and Society Piers Blaikie, Harold Brookfield, 2015-07-30 Why does land management so often fail to prevent soil erosion deforestation salination and flooding How serious are these problems and for whom This book first published in 1987 sets out to answer these questions which are still some of the most crucial issues in development today using an approach called regional political ecology This approach acknowledges that the reason why land management can fail are extremely varied and must include a thorough understanding of the changing natural resource base itself the human response to this and broader changes in society of which land managers are a part Land Degradation and Society is essential reading for all students of geography agriculture social sciences development studies and related subjects Land Degradation and Society Piers Blaikie, Piers M. of global trade networks Viking Age Europe was a well connected world Within this fertile social environment Iceland ironically has been casted as a marginal society too remote to participate in global affairs and destined to live in the shadow of its more successful neighbours Drawing on new archaeological evidence Tara Carter challenges this view arguing that by building strong social networks the first citizens of Iceland balanced thinking globally while acting locally creating the first cosmopolitan society in the North Atlantic Iceland s Networked Society asks us to reconsider how societies like Iceland can even when positioned at the margins of competing empires remain active in a global political economy and achieve social complexity on its own terms Technical and Technological Solutions Towards a Sustainable Society and Circular

been the cause of many environmental problems and there is a consensus on the diagnosis Integrated technologies reduce resource use and or pollution at source by using cleaner production methods This generally leads to a reduction in the by products energy inputs and resources used by companies to produce goods Integrated production technologies reduce negative environmental impacts at source by substituting or modifying cleaner technologies Examples of integrated or cleaner production technologies are the recirculation of materials the use of environmentally friendly materials such as the substitution of water for organic solvents etc However the implementation of integrated production technologies is often hampered by obstacles related to cost coordination and skill inertia problems and to the productive organisation of companies In addition to the high investment costs of new integrated technologies additional barriers may emerge depending on the nature of the environmental problem and the type of environmental regulation in question
