Land Tenure Conservation And Development In Southeast Asia:

Land Tenure, Conservation and Development in Southeast Asia Peter Eaton, 2013-04-15 This book examines the relationship between land tenure conservation and rural development in the context of the Southeast Asian archipelago. In particular, it is concerned with people living in and around national parks and other protected areas. It discusses the value of reinforcing indigenous tenure and sustainable resource use practices and of including them in policies and projects that attempt to integrate conservation and development.

Southeast Asian Development Andrew McGregor, 2008-03-03 Southeast Asia has long fascinated development practitioners and researchers for being one of the few regions of the world that has resisted global trends to become a successful developing region. Divided into accessible thematic chapters, this book adopts a unique perspective of equitable development to outline the strengths and weaknesses of the transformations taking place in the Southeast Asian region. Focusing on four key themes: equality and inequality, political freedom and opportunity, empowerment and participation, and environmental sustainability, these concepts are used to explore Southeast Asian development and trace the impacts that the growing popularity of market-led and grassroots approaches are having upon economic, political, and social processes. Whilst the diversity of the region is emphasized, so are some of the homogenizing trends, such as the concentration of wealth and services in urban areas and the subsequent migration of rural people into urban factories and squatter settlements. The ongoing commercialization and industrialization of rural agriculture, as well as the expansion of non-farm income earning opportunities in rural spaces and the alarming rates of environmental degradation which threaten health and livelihoods, are also exposed. In highlighting how Southeast Asian development is unevenly distributing wealth, opportunities, and risks throughout the region, this book emphasizes the need for creative new approaches to ensure that benefits of development are equitably enjoyed by all. Including illustrations, case studies, and further reading, this book provides an accessible, up-to-date introductory text for students and researchers interested in Southeast Asian development, development studies, Asian studies, and geography.

Regreening the Bare Hills David Lamb, 2010-10-14 In Regreening the Bare Hills: Tropical Forest Restoration in the Asia Pacific Region, David Lamb explores how reforestation might be carried out both to conserve biological diversity and to improve the livelihoods of the rural poor. While both issues have attracted considerable attention in recent years, this book takes a significant step by integrating ecological and silvicultural knowledge within the context of the social and economic issues that can determine the success or failure of tropical forest landscape restoration. Describing new approaches to the reforestation of degraded lands in the Asia Pacific tropics, the book reviews current approaches to reforestation throughout the region, paying particular attention to those which incorporate native species, including in multi-species plantations. It presents case studies from across the Asia Pacific region and discusses how the silvicultural methods needed to manage these new plantations will differ from conventional methods. It also explores how reforestation might be made more attractive to smallholders and how trade-offs between production and conservation are most easily made at a landscape scale The book concludes with a discussion of how future forest restoration may be affected by some current ecological and socio economic trends now underway The book represents a valuable resource for reforestation managers and policy makers wishing to promote these new silvicultural approaches as well as for conservationists development experts and researchers with an interest in forest restoration Combining a theoretical research perspective with practical aspects of restoration the book will be equally valuable to practitioners and academics while the lessons drawn from these discussions will have relevance elsewhere throughout the tropics

Chinese Big Business in Indonesia Christian Chua, 2008-02-14 The disintegration of Indonesia's New Order regime in 1998 and the fall of Soeharto put an end to the crude forms of centralised authoritarianism and economic protectionism that allowed large Chinese conglomerates to dominate Indonesia's private sector Contrary to all expectations most of the major capitalist groups though damaged considerably by the Asian Crisis managed to cope with the ensuing monumental political and economic changes and now thrive again albeit within a new democratic environment In this book Christian Chua assesses the state of capital before during and after the financial and political crisis of 1997-1998 and analyses the changing relationships between business and the state in Indonesia Using a distinct perspective that combines cultural and structural approaches on Chinese big business with exclusive material derived from interviews with some of Indonesia's major business leaders Chua identifies the strategies employed by tycoons to adapt their corporations to the post authoritarian regime and provides a unique insight into how state business relationships in Indonesia have evolved since the crisis Chinese Big Business in Indonesia is the first major analysis of capital in Indonesia since the fall of Soeharto and will be of interest to graduate students and scholars of political economy political sociology economics and business administration as well as to practitioners having to do with Southeast Asian business and politics

Rhetoric and the Decolonization and Recolonization of East Timor David Hicks, 2014-09-15 By the end of the 1960s the process of decolonization had practically run its course in Southeast Asia One exception however was tiny Portuguese Timor where notions of self determination and independence had yet to be generated In 1974 the Carnation Revolution in Portugal brought about the end of fifty years of dictatorship and halfway around the world presented a new opportunity to a small ambitious proportion of the Timorese population eager to shape the future of their country This book presents a compelling and original perspective on the critical period of 1974-1975 in the history of East Timor It describes how the language of politics helped to shape the events that brought about the decolonization of Portuguese Timor its brief independence as The Democratic Republic of East Timor and its recolonization by an Asian neighbour Further it challenges the idea that this period of history was infused by the spirit of nationalism in which the majority Timorese partook and which contended with other competing western isms including colonialism communism neo colonialism and fascism In contrast the book argues that the Timorese majority had little understanding of any of these alien political abstractions and that the period can be most effectively explained and understood in terms of the contrast between the political culture of Dili the capital and the political culture of the rest of the country In turn David Hicks highlights how the period of 1974 1975 can offer lessons to government and international policy makers alike who are trying to bring about a transformation in governance from the traditional to the legal and convert individuals from peasants to citizens The result of extensive fieldwork and interviews this book will be of interest to students and scholars of Southeast Asian studies international relations post conflict studies and post colonial studies

Law and Religion in Indonesia Melissa Crouch, 2013-11-12 Understanding and managing inter religious relations particularly between Muslims and Christians presents a challenge for states around the world This book investigates legal disputes between religious communities in the world s largest majority Muslim democratic country Indonesia It considers how the interaction between state and religion has influenced relations between religious communities in the transition to democracy The book presents original case studies based on empirical field research of court disputes in West Java a majority Muslim province with a history of radical Islam These include criminal court cases as well as cases of judicial review relating to disputes concerning religious education permits for religious buildings and the crime of blasphemy The book argues that the democratic law reform process has been influenced by radical Islamists because of the politicization of religion under democracy and the persistence of fears of Christianization It finds that disputes have been localized through the decentralization of power and exacerbated by the central government s ambivalent attitude towards radical Islamists who disregard the rule of law Examining the challenge facing governments to accommodate minorities and manage religious pluralism the book furthers understanding of state religion relations in the Muslim world This accessible and engaging book is of interest to students and scholars of law and society in Southeast Asia as well as Islam and the state and the legal regulation of religious diversity
