Koreas Growth And Industrial Transformation:

Korea's Growth and Industrial Transformation H. Lim, 1998-08-19 This book seeks to explore the role of domestic politics in the selection of industrial policy and the different patterns of industrial transformation in East Asia The approach taken in this book partly draws on earlier studies of industrial transformation product cycle theory and statist theory but combines and complements them by emphasizing the role of coalition in industrial policy and industrial transformation Policy and Economic Performance in Divided Korea During the Cold War Era Nick Eberstadt, 2010 Nicholas Eberstadt presents an impressive compilation of hard to find comparative data on economic performance for North Korea and South Korea over two critical generations Policy and Economic Performance in Divided Korea during the Cold War Era: 1945-91 Nicholas Eberstadt, 2010-03-16 In Policy and Economic Performance in Divided Korea during the Cold War Era 1945 91 Eberstadt presents an impressive compilation of hard to find comparative data on economic performance for the Democratic People's Republic of Korea DPRK or North Korea and the Republic of Korea ROK or South Korea over two critical generations By a number of indicators Eberstadt argues Kim Il Sung's North Korea actually outperformed South Korea for much of this period not only in the years immediately following partition but perhaps also into the 1970s State-Firm Coordination and Upgrading Angela Garcia Calvo, 2021-08-19 Since the 1980s Spain and South Korea have experienced a dramatic transformation from middle income to advanced economies While market liberalization and globalization were important forces for change and while states continue to be central in the organization of the Spanish and South Korean economies the liberal and the developmental state perspectives do not provide an understanding of critical elements of these transformations Building on a combination of historical institutionalism and international business literature this book shows that upgrading was underpinned by cooperative models based on interdependencies and quid pro quo exchanges between national governments and large firms The negotiated nature of these arrangements opened the door to institutional variation and enabled Spain and South Korea to pursue different strategies Spain pursued an integrational approach based on foreign direct investment technological outsourcing and regional integration South Korea pursued a techno industrial strategy that prioritized self sufficiency and the development of local technological capacity Both strategies enabled Spanish and South Korean firms across multiple complex sectors to reach the efficiency frontier but resulted in different productive specializations in complex services and manufacturing respectively Through a comparative study this book shifts our perspective on the political economy of economic transformation from markets or states to state firm coordination as a driver for economic transformation from one to at least two different pathways to upgrading and from a world divided into emerging economies and world leaders to a more nuanced perspective that recognizes the perspective of new advanced economies Handbook of East Asian Entrepreneurship Tony Fu-Lai Yu, Ho-Don Yan, 2014-10-03 With the shift of the global economic gravity toward emerging economies and the roaring economic growth of the past three decades in China East

Chau, Francis T Lui, Kai Sun Kwong, Larry Dongxiao Qiu, 2001-09-04 Economic analysis of the industrial experiences of the newly industrialized economies in Asia is generally lacking in the literature This study attempts to fill that void by providing an in depth discussion on the economic impact of the industrial policies of Singapore Taiwan and South Korea in the three and a half decades after 1960 Throughout the study a broad perspective of macroeconomic development is maintained It is highly critical of the narrow minded objective of certain governments in maximizing the pace of industrialization at the expense of general economic well being A comparative analysis of the industrial experiences of the three economies also shows a diversity of constraints and processes Singapore relied on multinational corporations Taiwan on returned engineers and South Korea on chaebols There appears to be no Asian formula for industrialization In Hong Kong there is an ongoing debate on whether some form of industrial policy should be introduced in view of the perception that Hong Kong is lagging behind the other economies in terms of technology Drawing on the experiences of the other economies the concluding chapter of the book provides an informed and balanced answer to this question Transformations in the Brazilian and

Korean Processes of Capitalist Development between the Early 1950s and the Mid-2010s: From Global Capital Accumulation to Late Industrialisation Nicolás Grinberg, 2023-10-16 Challenging mainstream nation centred theories of economic development Nicol's Grinberg examines the specificities of capitalist development in Brazil and South Korea by starting from their modes of participation in the international division of labour and hence in the production of surplus value on a global scale Contrary to those theories he does not consider these as resulting simply from the economic policies of nation states and their associated political institutions nor from local class struggle dynamics or geopolitical developments Rather drawing on key insights from Marx's critique of political economy his analysis begins by recognising that the process of capitalist development is global in terms of its economic dynamics and historical trends and national only in its political and institutional forms of realisation State mediated patterns of economic development and institutional change in Brazil and Korea as well as the intra and inter state political processes through which these have come about are then considered mediations in the conformation and reproduction of the nationally differentiated uneven process of capital's valorisation on a global scale Technological Progress and the Transformation of China's Economic Development Mode Wen

Xiao, 2020-10-01 This book explores how technological progress accelerates the transformation of economic development by adopting a fundamental logical approach to technological progress intensive inputs and promotion of productive efficiency to transformation of economic development It investigates the internal mechanisms and the choice of corresponding modes that initiate technological progress to accelerate the transformation of economic development at three basic research levels micro enterprise level mid industry level and macro economy level Based on the above research the book summarizes four dimensions facilitating the transformation agricultural intensification new industrialization modernization of the service industry and the advanced manufacturing industry and linkage of the modern service industry This book is especially valuable in its hierarchical categorization covering theoretical empirical industrial and strategic exploration On one hand it analyzes the mechanisms and approaches influencing the transformation of economic development driven by technological progress from both theoretical and empirical perspectives On the other hand based on the introduction of advanced international experiences it probes into the guarantee basis for the strategic implementation and the corresponding mode choices of the transformations Furthermore it offers specific policy proposals from both the macro level of how technological progress promotes the transformation of economic development and the micro level covering the agricultural industrial and service industries

Networks and Markets James E. Rauch, Alexandra Casella, 2001-06-21 Networks and Markets argues that economists knowledge of markets and sociologists rich understanding of networks can and should be combined Together they can help us achieve a more coherent view of economic life where transactions follow both the logic of economic incentives and the established channels of personal relationships Market exchange is impersonal episodic and carried out at arm s length All that matters is how much the seller is asking and how much the buyer is offering An economic network by contrast is based upon more personalized and enduring relationships between people tied together by more than just price Networks and Markets focuses on how the two concepts relate to each other Are social networks an essential precondition for successful markets or do networks arise naturally out of markets as faceless traders build reputations and gain confidence in each other The book includes contributions by both sociologists and economists applying the concepts of markets and networks to concrete empirical phenomena Among the topics analyzed the book explains how in Taiwan South Korea and Japan firms combine into tightly knit business blocs how wholesalers in a Marseille fish market earn the loyalty of customers and how ethnic retailers in the U S share valuable market information with other shopkeepers from their ethnic group A response to each chapter discusses the issue from the standpoint of the other discipline Sociologists are challenged to go beyond small scale economic exchange and to integrate their concept of networks into a broader understanding of the economic system as a whole while economists are challenged to consider the economic implications of network ties which can be strong or weak unconditional or highly contingent This book proves that both economics and sociology provide stronger insights when they study markets and networks as parallel forms of exchange But it also clarifies the healthy division of labor that remains between the two disciplines Sociologists are adept at showing how markets are framed by social institutions economists specialize in explaining how markets perform taking the social context as a given Networks and Markets showcases what each discipline does best and reveals where each discipline would do better by borrowing from the other
