Leslie H. Sobin, 1976 Histological Typing of Thyroid Tumours in collaboration with L.H. Sobin By Chr. Hedinger (and pathologists in nine countries. Classification of tumours in English, French, Russian and Spanish), 1974 Histological Typing of Tumours of the Exocrine Pancreas G. Klöppel, 1996-02-19 This is a histological classification of tumours and tumour like lesions of the exocrine pancreas which also includes those tumours showing a mixture of exocrine and endocrine elements The classification is based principally on standard microscopic observations but whenever indicated it incorporates diagnostically valuable immunohistological findings In addition the most important immunohistological findings which are helpful in categorizing pancreatic tumours are summarised in Table 1 The major guideline of this classification scheme is the grouping of the pancreatic exocrine tumours according to their biological behaviour Thus the neoplasms are broadly divided into benign adenoma and malignant tumours carcinoma However in recent years we have learned that this division is not a sharp but rather a gradual transition We therefore added a third group which we call tumours of uncertain malignant potential representing a borderline category analogous to that recognized for some ovarian tumours This group includes mucinous cystic tumour intraductal papillary mucinous tumour and solid pseudopapillary tumour These neoplasms are defined by the grade of dysplasia and or potential to become malignant Mucinous cystic tumours of uncertain malignant potential for instance exhibit moderate epithelial dysplasia but do not show severe dysplasia carcinoma in situ changes nor carcinomatous invasion of the cyst wall or the adjacent pancreatic tissue Solid pseudopapillary tumour has a benign looking histological appearance but metastases may occur Biologically all these neoplasms are primarily slow growing lesions and have an excellent prognosis when adequately treated by complete resection Histological Typing of Tumours of the Upper Respiratory Tract and Ear K.
