History and Modern Media John Mraz,2021-04-15 In History and Modern Media John Mraz largely focuses on Mexican photography and his innovative methodology that examines historical photographs by employing the concepts of genre and function He developed this method in extensive work on photojournalism it is tested here through examining two genres Indianist imagery as an expression of imperial neo colonizing and decolonizing photography and progressive photography as embodied in worker and laborist imagery as well as feminist and decolonizing visibility The book interweaves an autobiographical narrative with concrete research Mraz describes the resistance he encountered in US academia to this new way of showing and describing the past in films and photographs as well as some illuminating experiences as a visiting professor at several US universities More importantly he reflects on what it has meant to move to Mexico and become a Mexican Mexico is home to a thriving school of photohistorians perhaps unequaled in the world Some were trained in art history and a few continue to pursue that discipline However the great majority work from the discipline known as photohistory which focuses on vernacular photographs made outside of artistic intentions A central premise of the book is that knowing the cultures of the past and of the other is crucial in societies dominated by short term and parochial thinking and that today s hyper audiovisuality requires historians to use modern media to offer their knowledge as alternatives to the perpetual present in which we live
