

Creating new business models and innovations

- Achieved creating new products, new services, and innovations through collaborations and joint ventures with foreign companies that possess unique products, services, technologies, and business models that Japanese companies do not have.
- Contributed to the development of new business fields and technologies that were previously unreachable and the expansion of business portfolios through the creation of such new businesses and innovations

Strengthening management bases

- Achieved advanced business management by incorporating advanced know-hows and knowledges from foreign companies with respect to business management methods (management governance) such as KPI management and per-capita sales setting.
- Realized business reforms by introducing business know-how and knowledges of system development and operation optimization held by the foreign partners in collaborations or joint ventures

Improvement of sales and marketing capabilities

- Contributed to the expansion of sales channels for products and services (including overseas expansion) by utilizing the sales channels and marketing methods of the foreign partners in collaborations or joint ventures.
- Also, strengthened the brand power of the products and services of the Japanese companies to enhance their bargaining powers against their business partners and their competitiveness.

Improvement of production and development capacity and productivity

- Achieved stable procurement of materials and expansion of business scale through collaborations and joint ventures with foreign companies that are expanding their business globally.
- Also, improved the quality of the Japanese companies' own products and achieved lower production costs by incorporating the best practices of foreign companies with respect to manufacturing and quality control methods

Human Resource Development and Retention

- Developed and strengthened global human resources by promoting exchanges with global human resources from foreign companies and creating opportunities to gain business experience overseas.
- In addition, promoted the development of human resources who will handle digital transformation of business model by introducing the IT system utilization know-hows of the foreign partners in collaborations or joint ventures.

Improvement of working environments and conditions

- Improved employees' motivation and performance by introducing a fair and transparent personnel evaluation system (including a compensation system that reflects employees' performance).
- Also enhanced employees' motivation through participation in overseas projects and interactions with foreign human resources.

Engineered in Japan Jeffrey K. Liker, John E. Ettlie, John Creighton Campbell, 1995 Engineered in Japan presents a unique and comprehensive examination of technology management in the most successful Japanese companies unique in that all chapters go beyond superficial descriptions of stylized practices to look in depth at particular issues often contradicting or qualifying the conventional wisdom comprehensive in that it covers the entire technology life cycle from basic R D to development engineering to manufacturing processes to learning from the Japanese Each chapter is based on original research by noted scholars in the field and identifies technology management practices that have become a major source of competitive advantage for highly successful Japanese companies Engineered in Japan documents the best practices from such companies as Toyota Hitachi Toshiba and Nippondenso and discusses how these technology management practices can be usefully adopted in other cultural contexts Going beyond past observations the authors all delve below the surface of Japanese management approaches They look more closely than has been done before at how particular methods are applied and they identify some new practices that have not yet been highlighted in books on Japanese methods Presenting recent data that contradict some conventional thinking about U S Japanese differences they look at old techniques from a new perspective U S managers can perhaps learn more from the process of creation in Japan and the organizational structures that support innovation say the editors in their introduction than from the particular approaches tools and technologies created A running theme throughout the book is that Japanese managers and engineers tend to think in terms of systems focusing not just on the parts but on the connections between them Engineered in Japan is must reading for technology managers and engineers along with anyone interested in Japanese business engineering and management Gaijin Kaisha Jackson N. Huddleston,1990 For a foreigner to run a business in a culture as alien to the West as Japan the most competitive and dynamic market in the world it takes a general manager with the wisdom of the founder the tolerance of an aviator the toughness of a field general and the zeal of a missionary This book is about the Gaijin Kaisha the foreign firm in Japan It discusses what the general manager needs to consider and the support he must have from his head office if his company and he are to be successful in Japan and it tells where he can turn in the Japanese community for assistance Japan's Distribution System and Options for Improving U.S. Access ,1990 Phase I, Japan's Distribution System and Options for Improving U.S. Access United States.
