Weinbaum, 2015-07-24 As the reality of a food deficit emerged in the Middle East rural society and the agricultural sector once viewed as peripheral to national development swiftly rose up the policy agendas of nearly every Middle East country This book first published in 1982 looks at the complex interrelationships of food production development schemes and politics in those countries Dr Weinbaum considers the origins nature scope and political dimensions of the potential food shortfall and explores how food deficits could lead to changed international relations among states in the Middle East He specifically examines the physical and technological limitations to increased food production then assesses the major social economic and political hurdles in the way of agricultural development the effects of and pressures for agrarian reform the bureaucratic policymaking process and the domestic impact of foreign assistance policies He concludes with an examination of the linkage between food supply availability and political stability      U.S. Government Books, 1987
    The Middle East and North Africa 2003 Eur,      Home and Homeland Linda L. Layne, 2019-01-15 In this provocative examination of collective identity in Jordan Linda Layne challenges long held Western assumptions that Arabs belong to easily recognizable corporate social groups Who is a true Jordanian Who is a true Bedouin These questions according to Layne are examples of a kind of pigeonholing that has distorted the reality of Jordanian national politics In developing an alternate approach she shows that the fluid social identities of Jordan emerge from an ongoing dialogue among tribespeople members of the intelligentsia Hashemite rulers and Western social scientists Many commentators on social identity in the Middle East limit their studies to the village level but Layne s goal is to discover how the identity building processes of the locality and of the nation condition each other She finds that the tribes creates their own cultural homes through a dialogue with official nationalist rhetoric and Jordanian urbanites while King Hussein in turn maintains the idea of the homeland in many ways that are powerfully influenced by the tribespeople The identities so formed resemble the shifting irregular shapes of postmodernist landscapes but Hussein and the Jordanian people are also beginning to use a classically modernist linear narrative to describe themselves Layne maintains however that even with this change Jordanian identities will remain resistant to all or nothing descriptions Linda L Layne is Alma and H Erwin Hale Teaching Professor of Humanities and Social Sciences in the Department of Science and Technology Studies at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute Originally published in 1994 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Employment of the Engineer System in Arid Mountainous and Desert Areas--a Concept Paper Paul G. Cerjan, Theodore G. Stroup, 1981 The employment of the Engineer system is examined for desert and arid mountainous terrain Geographic focus for the paper is the Mediterranean basin along North Africa the Arabian Peninsula Southwest Asia and the horn of Africa Such terrain presents the military engineer a terrain spectrum not heretofore considered in the last two or three decades Historical research provides lessons learned from WW II 1967 and 1973 wars Impact on system elements mobility countermobility survivability and general engineering vis a vis the terrain is discussed Considerations and recommendations are offered for each system element for realistic and timely implementation rather than long development processes and large resource outlays Engineer force structure considerations are postulated for a deployment into an austere arid area Additional considerations are presented for areas of doctrine equipage and training Commanders and staff officers of engineer and engineer supported units should be able to garner ideas and techniques from paper discussion for potential near term contingency missions and projects focused on desert and arid mountainous terrain areas
