The Desertmakers Javier Uriarte, 2019-10-29 This book studies how the rhetoric of travel introduces different conceptualizations of space and time in scenarios of war during the last decades of the 19th century in Argentina Brazil Paraguay and Uruguay By examining accounts of war and travel in the context of the consolidation of state apparatuses in these countries Uriarte underlines the essential role that war in connection to empire and capital has played in the Latin American process of modernization and state formation In this book the analysis of British and Latin American travel narratives proves particularly productive in reading the ways in which national spaces are reconfigured reimagined and reappropriated by the state apparatus War turns out to be a central instrument not just for making possible this logic of appropriation but also for bringing temporal notions such as modernization and progress to spaces that were described albeit problematically as being outside of history The book argues that wars waged against deserts as Patagonia the sertão Paraguay and the Uruguayan countryside were described and imagined were in fact means of generating empty spaces real voids that were the condition for new foundations The study of travel writing is an essential tool for understanding the transformations of space brought by war and for analyzing in detail the forms and connotations of movement in connection to violence Uriarte pays particular attention to the effects that witnessing war had on the traveler's identity and on the relation that is established with the oikos or point of departure of their own voyage Written at the intersection of literary analysis critical geography political science and history this book will be of interest to those studying Latin American literature Travel Writing and neocolonialism and Empire writing Joseph Conrad Joseph Conrad, Georges Jean-Aubry, 1927 A Conrad Chronology Owen Knowles, 1990-01-05 This chronology is designed to provide a digest of Conrad's life as it develops from year to year It is written as a series of diary or chronicle entries and thus caters for the reader who may wish to check a single fact The main contents are supplemented by a Who's Who and indexes Conrad and Imperialism Benita Parry, 1983-06-18 The Shape of Fear Susan Jennifer Navarette, 2021-05-11 During the last decades of the nineteenth century Charles Darwin Thomas Henry Huxley Walter Pater and others changed the nature of thought concerning the human body and the physical environment that had shaped it In response the 1890s saw the publication of a series of remarkable literary works that had their genesis in the intense scientific and aesthetic activity of those preceding decades texts that emphasized themes of degeneration and were themselves stylistically decompositive with language both a surrogate for physical deformity and a source of anxiety Susan J Navarette examines the ways in which scientific and cultural concerns of late nineteenth century England are coded in the horror literature of the period By contextualizing the structural stylistic and thematic systems developed by writers seeking to reenact textually the entropic forces they perceived in the natural world Navarette reconstructs the late Victorian mentalit She analyzes aesthetic responses to trends in contemporary science and explores horror writers use of scientific methodologies to support their perception that a long awaited period of cultural decline had begun In her analysis of the classics Turn of the Screw and Heart of Darkness Navarette shows how James and Conrad made artistic use of earlier scientific readings of the body She also considers works by lesser known authors Walter de la Mare Vernon Lee and Arthur Machen who produced fin de si cle stories that took the form of hybrid literary monstrosities To underscore the fascination with bodily decay and deformation that these writers explored The Shape of Fear is enhanced with prints and line drawings by Victor Hugo James Ensor and other artists of the day This elegantly written book formulates a new canon of late Victorian fiction that will intrigue scholars of literature and cultural history Bennett Wells And Conrad Linda R Anderson, 1988-03-22
