Joint Task Force:

Joint Task Force Headquarters U.S. Joint Force Command, 2014-07-26 A joint task force JTF is established when the scope complexity or other factors of the contingency or crisis require capabilities of Services from at least two Military Departments operating under a single joint force commander JFC The JTF establishing authority designates the commander joint task force CJTF assigns the mission designates forces delegates command authorities and relationships and provides other command and control C2 guidance necessary for the CJTF to form the joint force and begin operations The appropriate authority may establish a JTF on a geographic or functional basis or a combination of the two In either case the establishing authority typically assigns a joint operations area JOA to the JTF The size composition capabilities and other attributes will vary significantly among JTFs based on the mission and various factors of the operational environment such as the adversary the geography of the JOA the nature of the crisis e g flood earthquake and the time available to accomplish the mission

Joint Task Force-Civil Support: Are We on the Right Track? , 2001 Weapons of Mass Destruction Consequence Management WMD CoM has become a new mission area for DoD The mission was tasked to Joint Forces Command and subsequently a standing JTF was established to support the Lead Federal Agency for domestic CoM Joint Task Force Civil Support JTF CS is now the operational lead for DoD in domestic CoM This paper looks at the mission organization and command relationships of JTF CS to determine if it is the correct organization for handling the DoD contribution in this new mission area and asks Are we on the right track In determining if the JTF is on the right track the mission is analyzed in terms of appropriateness and validity Examination continues with the organization of the JTF staff and also the functional Task Forces that constitute the JTF Next potentially complex command relationships are explored and challenges are identified The close look at JTF CS reveals both strengths and weakness and points to the need for continual refinement as the CoM mission evolves Recommendations are made on how the JTF with the support of JFCOM and the larger DoD community can improve effectiveness and enhance mission accomplishment Finally conclusions are drawn about JTF CS s role as the lead DoD organization for WMD CoM

Coping with Uncertainty Lance A. Bontos, ARMY COMMAND AND GENERAL STAFF COLLEGE FORT LEAVENWORTH KS SCHOOL OF ADVANCED MILITARY STUDIES., U.S. Army Command and General Staff College. School of Advanced Military Studies, 1991 This monograph examines the adequacy of the joint task force JTF to operate effectively in the context of wartime uncertainty Military theorists have long understood the deleterious effects of uncertainty on the conduct of war Commanders never know as much about the enemy or environmental conditions as they would like so they decide and act on the best information available however incomplete In coping with uncertainty there are proven methods of structuring one s organization to meliorate its effects These methods involve decentralizing command lowering decision thresholds and creating self contained semi autonomous units U S military doctrine recognizes the need for JTFs in responding to the global commitments of the nation Unfortunately Service incompatibilities and parochialism often have hampered the joint commander s ability to get the job done Congress mandated reform through the Goldwater Nichols Department of Defense Reorganization Act of 1986 the result has been to streamline joint command structures thus making them better able to deal with uncertainty The experience of multi Service operations during World War II confirms the wisdom of creating joint task forces when doctrinal conditions are met

The Organization and Training of Joint Task Forces Daniel R. Walker, 1996 The United States continues to challenge its military forces to provide maximum capability with minimum resources In order to meet that challenge effectively the US must take full advantage of the synergy provided by the unified action of joint forces Those forces are employed in a wide variety of missions that change during development and execution Formation of the joint task force JTF is one of several options to organize our military forces This thesis examines the organization training doctrine and experience of joint task forces within each of the five geographically tasked unified commands The thesis compares JTF operations in Somalia Haiti Panama Northern Iraq and Hawaii along with current unified command plans for organizing and training JTFs US Atlantic Command plans are described in detail because of this command s role as a joint force integrator The thesis notes that most commands build a JTF core from a subordinate component headquarters augmented by joint specialists from the unified command headquarters and other service component resources Unified commands choose the core headquarters based on ability to perform the specific mission and augment from other services appropriately The thesis concludes that US armed forces are improving their ability to train and organize JTFs effectively Continued improvement is required because current doctrine for training joint task forces is immature and the training programs implementing the doctrine are relatively new

Joint Task Force-Six (JTF-6), Continuation Support Services Program Along the United States , 1994

Joint Task Force - Information Operations (JTF-IO): Should One Exist? , 2005 Joint Publication 3 13 Joint Doctrine for Information Operations was published in 1998 to provide guidance on conducting joint information operations This paper will demonstrate that this doctrine did not provide sufficient detail with respect to IO organization as evidenced by IO difficulties encountered during recent conflicts In addition current doctrine does not provide sufficient guidance on component IO tasking Based on analysis of recent conflicts with respect to IO creation of a Joint Task Force Information Operations JTF IO is warranted to provide component level control direction and authority to conduct IO throughout the joint task force

What it Takes Michael Spirtas, Thomas-Durell Young, S. Rebecca Zimmerman, 2009 When appropriate the U S Air Force needs to be prepared to supply joint task force JTF headquarters If the U S Air Force takes the steps necessary to produce JTF capable units both the service and the nation would benefit The authors consider the nature of JTF command survey command related developments in other services and in other elements of the defense community and examine four JTF operations They raise issues for the Air Force to consider and offer a set of recommendations aimed at enhancing the Air Force s ability to staff and run JTF headquarters

Joint

Task Force #1 David E. Meadows, 2003 Joint Task Force Planning Guidance and Procedures United States. Joint Chiefs of Staff, 1994 Running the Joint Caitlin Lee, Stephen Webber, Alice Shih, Michael Spirtas, 2021 The authors examine U S Air Force efforts to develop a capability to carry out a Joint Task Force Headquarters JTF HQ mission The findings will be relevant to anyone interested in Air Force efforts to stand up a JTF HQ Joint Task Force Headquarters United States. Joint Chiefs of Staff, 2007 The Standing Joint Task Force: A Doctrinal Imperative , 2000 The U S military has long recognized the imperative of operating in a joint fashion with highly trained units led by competent professional officers While at the strategic level of war great strides have been made toward integrating the service components of the military instrument of national power at the operational level only small gains have been made Joint Pub 3 0 provides the doctrine for the conduct of joint operations It permits commanders of unified commands to establish Joint Task Forces JTFs to accomplish missions with specific limited objectives This doctrine provides the combatant commander three options to be used to form a JTF headquarters HQ They are the use of a standing JTF SJTF HQ by definition a committed force the formation of an ad hoc HQ from various contributors or the augmentation of a core Service component HQ Only the SJTF option provides a JTF staff capable of responding to contingency operations with a well trained staff Only the functional and geographic Commanders in Chief have the power to correct this serious deficiency in joint warfighting capability Combined Joint Task Force Provide Comfort Robert D. Lewis, 1992 On the anniversary of the triumph of Desert Storm American and Iraqi armed forces are still locked in a struggle of wills In the middle are up to two million Kurds These people will be dependent on the continuation of an American commitment for their very survival At present this Combined Joint Task Force CJTF sits in eastern Turkey uncertain of its mission or its role in the American security policy The regional states watch this force as one of their gauges of American commitment America s friends equate this U S presence as commitment of America s engagement in regional stability America s adversaries see the removal of the CJTF as an opening for possible aggression It must be asked if this CJTF has larger meaning than humanitarian support for the Kurds The United States has national interests in both the Persian Gulf and Southwest Asia These interests include national regional and specific policy goals The CJTF can contribute to the accomplishment of these goals through the conduct of certain deterrence crisis response and warfighting There are four potential models for this CJTF Each model must be able to support the American policy through the execution of the appropriate military missions It must be able to execute these missions at acceptable levels of risk At this moment we should ask What is the CJTF attempting to accomplish And what is the organization s way ahead Standing Down a Joint Task Force , 1995 Often established in a crisis joint task forces JTFs are generally designed to respond to a specific set of circumstances What happens to JTFs when the crises which originally demanded their formation disappears or is resolved Emphasis is placed on standing up JTFs but how does the Department of Defense determine when it is time to stand one down Are there criteria used to make this decision or is it a matter of judgement In addition this decision can be clouded by competing bureaucratic interests which seek to justify a continuation of the presence long after it is needed The following case of Joint Task Force Bravo Honduras illustrates this tendency U S Southern Command SOUTHCOM maintains a small American military presence in Honduras at a facility known as Soto Cano Air Base Joint Task Force Bravo JTF B directly subordinate to SOUTHCOM consists of approximately 800 members of the Army and Air Force and U S Government civilian personnel JTF B has operational control over all forces deployed to Honduras coordinates regional logistics supervises engineering projects maintains a search and rescue and medivac helicopter capability and assists Honduras in counterdrug actions Since the United States has no base leasing agreement its military presence is dependent on the express permission of the government of Honduras SOUTHCOM has had a presence at Soto Cano for over a decade The original reasons for establishing JTF B faded with the Cold War but a lack of policy guidance from Washington has resulted in an American extended presence Although SOUTHCOM continues to justify JTF B as a critical hub for U S military training in Central America most of the missions in question could be accomplished without the task force saving DOD approximately 22 million annually Corporate Author Headings ,1970 Corporate Author Headings Federal Council for Science and Technology (U.S.). Committee on Scientific and Technical Information,1970 A Guide to Federal Terms and Acronyms Don Philpott,2017-12-20 Navigating government documents is a task that requires considerable knowledge of specialized terms and acronyms This required knowledge nearly amounts to knowing a completely different language To those who are not fluent the task can be overwhelming as federal departments fill their documents with acronyms abbreviations and terms that mean little or nothing to the outsider Would you be able to make sense of a document that described how the COTR reports to the CO regarding compliance with FAR GPRA SARA and FASA This is a common procedure in government contracting Would you have any clue what was being referred to if you came across MIL STD 129P It is the new standard for Military Shipping Label Requirements The sheer number of such terms makes mastering them nearly impossible But now these terms and their definitions are within reach This new edition of A Guide to Federal Terms and Acronyms presents a glossary of key definitions used by the federal government It is updated to include new acronyms and terminology from various federal government departments It covers the most common terms acronyms and abbreviations used by each major agency presenting definitions and explanations in a user friendly and accessible way This is an essential tool for anyone who works with federal government information Corporate Author Entries Used by the Technical Information Service in Cataloging Reports U.S. Atomic Energy Commission,1964 Joint Force Quarterly ,1993
