modeller is used to press down the edges and the outline is then gone over with a hot tool MOSAIC IN RELIEF The term mosaic is perhaps not very correctly applied to this style of decoration in which the shape of the design is indented by pressure on the damp surface of the groundwork and filled in with an inlay of leathers thick enough to stand out in relief and be subsequently carved A thin kind of cowhide¹ specially prepared for embossed work is used The design is traced upon it in the manner described for carved leather and a preliminary modelling is executed indicating the outlines and veinings as strongly as possible The high reliefs may be embossed and lightly stuffed This done it is placed upon Bristol board not less than half the thickness of the leather itself with a piece of red transfer paper face downwards in between The whole is firmly fixed upon a drawing board so that nothing can get displaced and the design is cut out with a stencil cutter s knife Fig 22 If possible both leather and Bristol board

The Decoration of Leather Maude Nathan, 2015-08-04 Excerpt from The Decoration of Leather From the French of Georges De Recy In a preface which is omitted from this translation the author claims for his work a place between the books dealing solely with the history and development of the art of working in leather and those of which the object is to impart a knowledge of the technique of its various processes to amateurs who may be unable or unwilling to undertake a regular course of instruction He points out that leather in its adaptability to many different kinds of treatment is a material eminently suited to the interpretation of the style of decoration known as modern art In the French edition there are numerous reproductions of examples of leather decoration and of ornament intended for adaptation to leather work In the following translation these illustrations and also a short chapter referring to them are omitted and some examples of leather work derived from various English sources are substituted The text of the work has been generally somewhat abridged The fact that there are many technical and other terms in French that have no exact equivalent in our own language has rendered a free translation desirable but the meaning of the original text has been carefully preserved About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
