Geopolitics Of Natural Gas:

Geopolitics of Natural Gas Jeremy Russell, 1983      The New Geopolitics of Natural Gas Agnia Grigas, 2017-04-24 As the United States aggressively expands its exports of liquefied natural gas it stands poised to become an energy superpower This unanticipated reality is rewriting the conventional rules of intercontinental gas trade and realigning strategic relations among the United States the European Union Russia China and beyond as Agnia Grigas shows      The Future of Natural Gas ,      The Geopolitics of Natural Gas , 2012 This report proceeds as follows First key results of a preliminary reference scenario offered by the Rice World Gas Trade Model RWGTM This reference scenario includes inputs developed at prior study workshops The reference scenario offers initial insights into changes in natural gas trade flows that might come about in the coming decades based on a projection of current and expected geopolitical factors Then the report offers four global scenarios which differ along two dimensions the level of success of bringing unconventional gas to the market and the level of liberalization of global gas trade These scenarios are the result of two days of deliberations about the changing geopolitics of natural gas and their impact on market and pricing This report reflects parts of the discussion of the expert group to stimulate discussion on the topic It is not meant to provide a comprehensive treatment of global gas politics and markets

Introduction      Monetizing Natural Gas in the New “New Deal” Economy Michelle Michot Foss, Anna Mikulska, Gürcan Gülen, 2022-05-26 Natural gas markets have undergone momentous changes worldwide This book updates and expands on the dynamics performance and forward path of expanding natural gas use in the US and worldwide including international trade It brings together major research themes and findings with recent updates and analysis of new trends and developments It also explores many considerations for natural gas market development such as the importance of infrastructure transparent pricing and institutional capacity This book is unique in providing background on the full natural gas value chain as well as information and analysis that can foster scenario building and decision making Of particular value are the lessons learned and demonstrated for those countries that aspire to build effective natural gas markets and to expand natural gas development and use      Natural Gas and Geopolitics Cambridge University Press, 2006      New Energy, New Geopolitics Sarah O. Ladislaw, Maren Leed, Molly A. Walton, 2015-05-15 This report evaluates the energy and geopolitical shifts that have arisen from the production of shale gas and light tight oil in the United States It begins by assessing how much the unconventional energy trend has already impacted energy geopolitics and national security The report then posits several possible energy futures that could emerge from the unconventional revolution Finally it offers views on the major geostrategic question how will the United States seek to utilize this so far domestic resource trend and given the range of potential future energy outcomes what might the geopolitical and national security implications be This report pairs with three background reports all available from Rowman Littlefield New Energy New Geopolitics Background Report 1 Energy Impacts New Energy New Geopolitics Background Report 2 Geopolitical and National Security Impacts New Energy New

Geopolitics Background Report 3 Scenarios Strategies and Pathways      Monetizing Natural Gas in the New "New Deal" Economy Michelle Michot Foss, Anna Mikulska, Gürcan Gülen, 2021 Natural gas markets have undergone momentous changes worldwide This book updates and expands on the dynamics performance and forward path of expanding natural gas use in the US and worldwide including international trade It brings together major research themes and findings with recent updates and analysis of new trends and developments It also explores many considerations for natural gas market development such as the importance of infrastructure transparent pricing and institutional capacity This book is unique in providing background on the full natural gas value chain as well as information and analysis that can foster scenario building and decision making Of particular value are the lessons learned and demonstrated for those countries that aspire to build effective natural gas markets and to expand natural gas development and use Michelle Michot Foss is Fellow in Energy Minerals related technical assistance and customized capacity building in numerous countries After nine years at the University of Houston and 13 years at the Bureau of Economic Geology UT Austin he is now an independent consultant and continues to instruct in executive education programs He is a USAEE Senior Fellow      Natural Gas and Geopolitics David G. Victor, Amy M. Jaffe, Mark H. Hayes, 2006-06-29 By most estimates global consumption of natural gas a cleaner burning alternative to coal and oil will double by 2030 However in North America Europe China and South and East Asia which are the areas of highest expected demand the projected consumption of gas is expected to far outstrip indigenous supplies Delivering gas from the world's major reserves to the future demand centres will require a major expansion of inter regional cross border gas transport infrastructures This book investigates the implications of this shift utilizing historical case studies as well as advanced economic modelling to examine the interplay between economic and political factors in the development of natural gas resources The contributors aim to shed light on the political challenges which may accompany a shift to a gas fed world      The Geopolitics of Natural Gas James A. Baker III Institute for Public Policy, Program on Energy and Sustainable Development (Stanford University), 2005      Geopolitics of Natural Gas, 2005 Presentation of results of a joint study between the Energy Forum and the Program on Energy and Sustainable Development of Stanford University

Modeling the Geopolitics of Natural Gas Fabian Stähr, Reinhard Madlener, Christoph Hilgers, Franziska Holz, 2019 In the course of the crisis in the Ukraine most leading politicians in Eastern European countries such as Poland the Baltic States and Ukraine itself identified the high dependency on natural gas imports from Russia as a threat to energy security Hopes of independence through extraction of domestic shale gas resources which evolved after the US shale gas revolution and the substantial resource estimations for Polish shale gas published by the EIA in 2011 and updated 2013 are more topical than ever However there are several factors which dim the hope for repetition of the US shale gas revolution in Eastern Europe First international companies such as Shell ExxonMobil or Chevron withdrew from Poland and Ukraine due to poor exploration results Additionally because of environmental legislation and population density the obstacles for commercial shale gas production within Europe compared to the US are very high In this paper the Global Gas Model GGM Egging 2013 is used to simulate future patterns of the Eastern European gas supply Shale gas scenarios show that Poland and the Baltic States would lower their dependency with an annual production of 8 bcm Poland and 2 bcm Baltic States because of their relatively low natural gas consumption This means conversely that a failing production of shale gas would lead to ongoing dependence on natural gas imports In Ukraine however a potential shale gas production of 5 bcm a does not have major consequences with respect to an annual consumption of up to 60 bcm As for LNG scenarios US LNG exports do barely reach the Eastern European gas market in the Base Case scenario Only in the projected period between 2035 and 2040 Poland receives 4.9 bcm of US LNG However the Polish natural gas market is sensitive to provided subsidies A 30% subsidy on transportation increases the total amount of exported LNG to Poland up to 8 bcm In contrast the Ukrainian and Baltic natural gas market however barely react to subsidies from the US A minimum of 60% is needed to export US natural gas under economically rational conditions to both regions Modeling results show that the increasing natural gas demand in Ukraine the Baltic States and Poland is in need of either domestic shale gas production or an increase of pipeline or LNG imports

The Natural Gas Revolution Robert W. Kolb, 2013 Reveals how new gas resources are transforming the global energy industry redistributing economic and geopolitical power in stunning ways Explains the new promise of natural gas to stimulate economies and enrich human life and objectively assesses the major environmental risks that accompany fracking horizontal drilling and today's massive new LNG infrastructures Places natural gas in broader context clearly and carefully explaining what it will really mean to global economics geopolitics investors the environment and consumers Reducing European Dependence on Russian Gas Ralf Dickel, Oxford Institute for Energy Studies, 2014 The scramble for the Eastern Mediterranean Valeria Talbot, 2021-10-01 Over the past few years the Eastern Mediterranean has become a major hotspot for both natural gas and geopolitical competition Natural gas discoveries in the last decade have attracted growing interest from regional countries and beyond However recent escalations in tensions and outright confrontations suggest that competition goes beyond the scramble for energy Indeed natural gas is just one of the factors that contribute to shaping security and geopolitical dynamics in the Eastern Mediterranean which has emerged as a crucial strategic area in the broader Mediterranean and the Middle East Moving from the analysis of these interconnected factors this Report examines the strategy and the plethora of interests of regional and international players as well as the interplay between cooperative and competitive dynamics in the region What are the geopolitical security and energy interests of the countries involved What are the implications on the regional security context of the moves and policies of regional and international powers

The Geopolitics of Gas Shebonti Ray Dadwal, 2017 Explaores the evolving gas market and the various players who influence it both as producers and consumers However some of the players such as Australia and the new African producers as well as Japan and South Korea the two largest LNG consumers have not been included as their approach tends to be more commercial than geopolitical in nature

The Geopolitics of Energy Frank A. Verrastro, 2010 For a variety of reasons population growth development economics investment and infrastructure needs geopolitics policy governance and the expected impacts of climate change to name but a few the current global energy system is unsustainable in its present form But in the absence of replacement technologies and clean energy forms that are both scalable and affordable conventional sources of energy and related infrastructure need to remain robust for decades to come even as policymakers undertake efforts to transform the energy system This book identifies and examines the relevant drivers that are likely to dictate future trends in energy consumption and fuel choices in the context of a shifting geopolitical landscape taking into account the attendant economic foreign policy energy security and environmental consequences and priorities Projecting out to 2035 the report looks at petroleum coal renewables nuclear energy and natural gas plus what the authors term the game changer Climate change The authors believe that managing the transition to a new energy future will be one of the greatest challenges that the global community will face in the coming decades Contrary to fashionable political rhetoric such a transformation is likely to be irregular costly and at times painful but inevitably it will and must be done

The Political and Economic Challenges of Energy in the Middle East and North Africa David Ramin Jalilvand, Kirsten Westphal, 2017-11-22 The Middle East and North Africa MENA are in disarray and shifts in the field of energy have the potential to drastically affect the course of political and economic developments in the region Declining oil prices skyrocketing domestic demand the rise of unconventional oil and natural gas production in North America as well as shifting patterns of global energy trade all put severe pressures on both producing and importing countries in the MENA region Policy makers are facing fundamental challenges in light of the duality of grand transformations in geopolitics and energy Changes in the field of energy require substantial political and economic reforms affecting the very fabric of sociopolitical arrangements At the same time the MENA region's geopolitical volatility makes any such reforms extremely risky Including contributions by academics and analysts from both inside and outside the MENA region this volume explores the changes in global and regional energy the impact of changing international energy dynamics on politics and economies in the MENA region and the challenges that will result This is essential reading for researchers postgraduates and professionals in Middle Eastern and North African politics global energy governance and regionalism
