writing should be called working Whereas previous studies have focused on national literatures in isolation this volume demonstrates the two way traffic between British and French conceptions of literary labour It questions assumed areas of affinity and difference beginning with the labour politics of the early nineteenth century and their common root in the French Revolution It also scrutinises the received view of France as a source of a leisure ethic and of British writers as either rejecting or self consciously mimicking French models Individual essays consider examples of how different writers approached their work while also evoking a broader notion of work ethics understood as a humane practice whereby values benefits and responsibilities are weighed up      Rewriting and Rereading the XIX and XX-Century Canons Brian

Zuccala, Samuele Grassi, 2022-07-21 The book takes its lead from academic Annamaria Pagliaro's experience straddling Australia and Italy over a thirty year period As both former colleagues and collaborators of Pagliaro we editors intend to open a kaleidoscope of perspectives on the international research landscape in the fields of Italian and Anglophone studies starting from Pagliaro's own contribution to the creation of relations between the two cultures in the period that saw her work transnationally as Director of the Monash University Prato Centre 2005-2008      Charles Dickens George Gissing, 1902
