Leisure, Plantations, and the Making of a New South Julia Brock, Daniel Vivian, 2015-10-01 Leisure Plantations and the Making of New South investigates the social architectural and environmental history of sporting plantations in the South Carolina lowcountry and the Red Hills region of southeast Georgia and northern Florida Although plantations figure prominently in histories of the post emancipation South historians have paid little attention to the redevelopment of plantations for non agricultural use By examining the two largest concentrations of sporting plantations on the south Atlantic coast this collection explores questions about historical memory of slavery race relations material culture and the environment during the first half of the twentieth century

A New Plantation World Daniel J. Vivian, 2018-03-01 In the era between the world wars wealthy sportsmen and sportswomen created more than seventy large estates in the coastal region of South Carolina By retaining select features from earlier periods and adding new buildings and landscapes wealthy sporting enthusiasts created a new type of plantation In the process they changed the meaning of the word plantation with profound implications for historical memory of slavery and contemporary views of the South A New Plantation World is the first critical investigation of these sporting plantations By examining the process that remade former sites of slave labor into places of leisure Daniel Vivian explores the changing symbolism of plantations in Jim Crow era America Richmond Hill Plantation, 1810-1868

James L. Michie,1990 Lowcountry Time and Tide James H. Tuten,2012-11-26 A thorough account of rice culture s final decades and of its modern legacy In mapping the slow decline of the rice kingdom across the half century following the Civil War James H Tuten offers a provocative new vision of the forces agricultural environmental economic cultural and climatic stacked against planters laborers and millers struggling to perpetuate their once lucrative industry through the challenging postbellum years and into the hardscrabble twentieth century Concentrating his study on the vast rice plantations of the Heyward Middleton and Elliott families of South Carolina Tuten narrates the ways in which rice producers both the former grandees of the antebellum period and their newly freed slaves sought to revive rice production Both groups had much invested in the economic recovery of rice culture during Reconstruction and the beginning decades of the twentieth century Despite all disadvantages rice planting retained a perceived cultural mystique that led many to struggle with its farming long after the profits withered away Planters tried a host of innovations including labor contracts with former slaves experiments in mechanization consolidation of rice fields and marketing cooperatives in their efforts to rekindle profits but these attempts were thwarted by the insurmountable challenges of the postwar economy and a series of hurricanes that destroyed crops and the infrastructure necessary to sustain planting Taken together these obstacles ultimately sounded the death knell for the rice kingdom The study opens with an overview of the history of rice culture in South Carolina through the Reconstruction era and then focuses on the industry s manifestations and decline from 1877 to 1930 Tuten offers a close study of changes in agricultural techniques and tools during the period and demonstrates how adaptive and progressive rice planters became despite their conservative reputations He also explores the cultural history of rice both as a foodway and a symbol of wealth in the lowcountry used on currency and bedposts Tuten concludes with a thorough treatment of the lasting legacy of rice culture especially in terms of the environment the continuation of rice foodways and iconography and the role of rice and rice plantations in the modern tourism industry Georgetown's North Island
