Fighting For Survival:

Fighting for Survival Michael LoMonaco, 2014-04-24 Fighting for Survival will inspire your heart and soul which is a non fiction book about severe conflicts that I have endured from a lifelong struggle Through poems as well as personal statements I describe the life lessons that I learned from past experiences and the lessons that I learned from being incarcerated in prison Because of my incarceration I am capable of living my life based on righteousness There are two ways to learn life lessons the hard way and the easy way but sometimes learning the hard way is the only way For many years I have been learning knowledge the hard way now I m learning wisdom the easy way I was always able to survive those difficult hardships because I am a survivor who conquered many adversities and I will always fight any obstacles that would take away my right to cherish the gift of life

Fighting for Survival Brian J. Savage, 2020 Would you be willing to kill in order to survive Because it s survival of the fittest in a post apocalyptic world If you woke up and realised that a virus had killed almost everyone in the world could you survive on your own Are you the last man alive or are more people immune Other survivors might want to take what you have got It s no longer about the virus it s how to SURVIVE afterwards

Even if one person in a thousand had survived would you be able to organise such a small number to use what was left over from of the society Obtaining food and drink won t be a problem for you You can break into the many empty shops But Technology will no longer work as there are not enough people to keep it running No internet no mains electricity no industrial processes When things run out you will not be able to replace them Not only has the world regressed to well before the Industrial Revolution the remaining population is now less than that it was in Biblical times The new world will be harder to live in than the past You will need to find hidden talents engage in many battles and overcome many challenges to survive Should you obtain weapons Should you guard the supermarkets to protect your food stocks What about water heat and shelter What skills will you and your fellow survivors need Fighting for Survival is the first episode of the global Pandemic Virus series We discover how one group must cope with the new reality and how resilient and adaptable mankind can be People must find hidden talents and new ways to live They are now living in a world left behind after a Pandemic which has been far worse than any that the world has previously been experienced One small group must prove they have the ability skills and willingness to survive or they could be the last people alive on earth
