Geomorphological Hazards and Disaster Prevention Irasema Alcntara-Ayala, Andrew S. Goudie, 2010-03-04 Human activities have had a huge impact on the environment and landscape through industrialisation and land use change leading to climate change deforestation desertification land degradation and air and water pollution These impacts are strongly linked to the occurrence of geomorphological hazards such as floods landslides snow avalanches soil erosion and others Geomorphological work includes not only the understanding but the mapping and modelling of Earth's surface processes many of which directly affect human societies In addition geomorphologists are becoming increasingly involved with the dimensions of societal problem solving through vulnerability analysis hazard and risk assessment and management The work of geomorphologists is therefore of prime importance for disaster prevention An international team of geomorphologists have contributed their expertise to this volume making this a scientifically rigorous work for a wide audience of geomorphologists and other Earth scientists including those involved in environmental science hazard and risk assessment management and policy

Archaeological Landscapes of the Near East Tony J. Wilkinson, 2003-11 Many fundamental studies of the origins of states have built upon landscape data but an overall study of the Near Eastern landscape itself has never been attempted Spanning thousands of years of history the ancient Near East presents a bewildering range of landscapes the understanding of which can greatly enhance our ability to infer past political and social systems Tony Wilkinson now shows that throughout the Holocene humans altered the Near Eastern environment so thoroughly that the land has become a human artifact albeit one that retains the power to shape human societies In this trailblazing book the first to describe and explain the development of the Near Eastern landscape using archaeological data Wilkinson identifies specific landscape signatures for various regions and periods from the early stages of complex societies in the fifth to sixth millennium B C to the close of the Early Islamic period around the tenth century A D From Bronze Age city states to colonized steppes these signature landscapes of irrigation systems tells and other features changed through time along with changes in social economic political and environmental conditions By weaving together the record of the human landscape with evidence of settlement the environment and social and economic conditions Wilkinson provides a holistic view of the ancient Near East that complements archaeological excavations cuneiform texts and other conventional sources Through this overview culled from thirty years research Wilkinson establishes a new framework for understanding the economic and physical infrastructure of the region By describing the basic attributes of the ancient cultural landscape and placing their development within the context of a dynamic environment he breaks new ground in landscape archaeology and offers a new context for understanding the ancient Near East
