book highlights both recent innovations in professional health curricula and continuing education and interventions aimed at improving student attitudes towards geriatrics and aging. The contributors cover areas including simulation, online training and standardized patients for evaluation but also emphasize the important end result of clinical training to take care of real older adults outside the classroom. Importantly, this underscores the development of powerful learning experiences of students by sensitizing them to the frameworks of palliative care, cancer care, sexuality and aging research, all of which serves as a powerful catalyst for creating a pipeline of students who embrace aging as a central theme of their future work. As increased training in geriatrics is required to attune the health care workforce to the needs of older adults, this book will be of interest to those seeking to create a more age friendly healthcare curriculum. Integrative geriatrics is a new field of medicine that advocates for a whole person, patient centered, primarily non-pharmacological approach to medical care of the elderly. Most current geriatric practices overprescribe medications and procedures and underutilize non-pharmacological, low cost, high touch methods. Patients, however, often show reluctance towards these standard practices as the interventions they rely upon are often invasive. The practice of integrative geriatrics is rooted in lifestyle interventions such as nutrition, movement, therapies and mind-body and spirituality approaches that allow patients to have different paths to their healthcare one that utilizes pharmaceuticals and invasive procedures only when safer integrative approaches are not available or not effective This first definitive textbook of this new field presents detailed evidence based information for all healthcare providers and advocates who work with geriatric population It is intended not only for providers in outpatient settings but also to those who work in nursing homes assisted and independent living facilities and senior community centers In addition Integrative Geriatric Medicine will provide valuable information for leaders and politicians who are involved with implementing policies and procedures for care of elderly patients looking for safer less costly and more patient centered approaches
