The Resurrection of the Son of God Nicholas Thomas Wright, 2003 Why did Christianity begin and why did it take the shape it did To answer this question which any historian must face renowned New Testament scholar N T Wright focuses on the key points what precisely happened at Easter What did the early Christians mean when they said that Jesus of Nazareth had been raised from the dead What can be said today about this belief This book third in Wright's series Christian Origins and the Question of God sketches a map of ancient beliefs about life after death in both the Greco-Roman and Jewish worlds It then highlights the fact that the early Christians' belief about the afterlife belonged firmly on the Jewish spectrum while introducing several new mutations and sharper definitions This together with other features of early Christianity forces the historian to read the Easter narratives in the gospels not simply as late rationalizations of early Christian spirituality but as accounts of two actual events the empty tomb of Jesus and his appearances How do we explain these phenomena The early Christians answer was that Jesus had indeed been bodily raised from the dead that was why they hailed him as the messianic son of God No modern historian has come up with a more convincing explanation Facing this question we are confronted to this day with the most central issues of the Christian worldview and theology

Power of Emotions: On the Affective Constitution of Political Struggle Andreas Ventsel, Peeter Selg, 2025-07-11 The emergence of political identities and communities in social media is largely driven by affective responses to current events a tendency facilitated by the dominance of emotionally and visually oriented communication However this mode of community formation leads first to the inherent instability and transience of these groups and second to the oversimplification of complex socio political issues into binary yes no alternatives Within this framework deliberation and argumentation based problem solving become increasingly difficult as discourse is supplanted by emotional reactions that position individuals either for or against an issue Particularly significant is the role of affect and emotion in communication during times of crisis whether in the context of migration the COVID 19 pandemic or the war in Ukraine This affective role is evident in the anchoring of public discourse to personal emotions and the generation and dissemination of hashtags and tags that consolidate diverse phenomena under a unified label Such collective identity coalesces around connective action which is primarily driven either by opposition to the established order or by the reinforcement of a preexisting system s foundations Consequently the emergence of these affective publics must be analyzed within the broader context of power dynamics and evolving forms of identification in the contemporary media sphere forms rooted in shared practices of expression action and interpretation This edited volume will explore the manifestations of affective semiosis meaning making at the socio cultural and discursive levels Cultural context emotional reactions and affective semiosis play a crucial role in shaping how issues related to identity and security are articulated in both domestic and foreign policy as well as in the ways solutions to these challenges are sought By adapting the concept of affective semiosis for the analysis of discursive structures this volume offers an innovative and effective approach to identifying the triggers of emotional reactions in discourse and examining their impact on the construction of political identities fear scenarios misinformation campaigns polarization and other dynamics within networked societies The volume includes both theoretically oriented papers as well as analyses of empirical materials
