Land Policies for Growth and Poverty Reduction Klaus W. Deininger, World Bank, 2003      Land Policies for Growth and Poverty Reduction Klaus W. Deininger, World Bank, 2003 This volume synthesizes insights from the vast literature on land policy taking due account of actual experiences in policy implementation and suggests ways to design land policies that promote growth as well as poverty reduction      Land Policies for Growth and Poverty Reduction Deininger K., 2003      Land Policies for Growth and Poverty Reduction Klaus Deininger, 2004 La tierra es un componente clave de la riqueza de cualquier naci n A trav s de la historia pr cticamente toda civilizaci n ha gastado considerable tiempo definiendo los derechos sobre la tenencia de la tierra y creando instituciones para administrarla      India - Land Policies for Growth and Poverty Reduction , 2007      India - Land Policies for Growth and Poverty Reduction Weltbank, 2012 In India land continues to be of enormous economic social and symbolic relevance The main purpose of this report is to review new empirical evidence on land administration and land policy as well as the possible interaction between the two to derive policy conclusions The empirical basis for the discussion of land administration is provided by a review of land records survey and settlement and land registration in 14 states Chapter two describes the origin nature and main functions of current institutions and the ensuing problems for secure tenure and easy transferability of land Chapter three identifies elements of a best practice approach to improving textual data records and registration and based on a review of state experience identifies the associated benefits Chapter four reviews the extent to which lessons from improving textual records could help to give a boost to improvement of the spatial database for land administration Chapter five concludes the discussion on land administration by assessing the scope for title registration to help improve tenure security in India and by identifying that need to be discussed Chapter 6 highlights that land reform has helped increase accumulation of physical and human capital but that the impact is declining over time Chapter 7 explores the functioning of land lease markets and the extent to which restrictions on land leasing reduce the scope for productivity and equity enhancing transfers through such markets which could be particularly beneficial for women Chapter 8 reviews the operation of land sales markets and suggests alternative approaches for preventing land loss by tribal people and chapter 9 concludes with a series of policy recommendations

Land Policies in India Sony Pellissery, Benjamin Davy, Harvey M. Jacobs, 2017-08-10 This book examines how property rights are linked to socio economic progress and development It also provides a theoretical analysis an economic social analysis of planning case studies of the implementation of planning and regulation instruments practices related to law and planning analysis of case laws in a particular segment The interconnection between property law and planning is a running theme throughout the book The land question has been central to South Asian development on two counts First although the majority of the population relies on agriculture and allied activities their livelihood landholding is highly skewed second urban planning is facing unprecedented challenges due to burgeoning property values as well as gush of migrants to cities seeking livelihood The response to these challenges in the form of laws and policies has been very large compared to the academic attention that is received However the measures emerging from planning and policies have had limited impact on the extent of the problems This paradox calls for serious introspection and academic engagement that this book undertakes The book further deals with the emerging discipline of planning law which determines property value and use and argues that regulatory issues of public policy determine the property valuation and property pricing

Making the Most of Agricultural Investment Sonja Vermeulen, Lorenzo Cotula, 2010 Examines a range of business models that can be used to structure agricultural investment in lower and middle income countries

Market-Led Agrarian Reform Saturnino Borrás Jr., Cristóbal Kay, Edward Lahiff, 2013-09-13 Three fourths of the world's poor are rural poor Most of the rural poor remain dependent on land based livelihoods for their incomes and reproduction despite significant livelihood diversification in recent years Land issue remains critical to any development discourse today Market led agrarian reform MLAR has gained prominence since the early 1990s as an alternative to state led land reforms This neoliberal policy is based on the inversion of what its proponents see as the features of earlier approaches and calls for redistribution via privatized decentralized transactions between willing sellers and willing buyers Its proponents especially those associated with the World Bank have claimed success where the policy has been implemented but such claims have been contested by independent scholars as well as by peasant movements who are struggling to gain access to land This book presents three thematic papers and six country studies The thematic papers address issues of formalisation of property rights gendered land rights and neoliberal enclosure These studies demonstrate the pervasive influence of neoliberal ideas on property rights and rural development debates well beyond the core question of land redistribution The country cases bring together experiences from Brazil Guatemala El Salvador Philippines South Africa and Egypt Common findings include the success of landowners in minimising the impact of reform and a lack of post transfer support translating into marginal impact on poverty The limitations of the market led approach and the implications of the studies presented here for the future of agrarian reform are considered in the editors introduction This book was a special issue of The Third World Quarterly

World Development Report 2008 World Bank, 2007-10-15 The world's demand for food is expected to double within the next 50 years while the natural resources that sustain agriculture will become increasingly scarce degraded and vulnerable to the effects of climate change In many poor countries agriculture accounts for at least 40 percent of GDP and 80 percent of employment At the same time about 70 percent of the world's poor live in rural areas and most depend on agriculture for their livelihoods World Development Report 2008 seeks to assess where when and how agriculture can be an effective instrument for economic development especially development that favors the poor It examines several broad questions How has agriculture changed in developing countries in the past 20 years What are the important new challenges and opportunities for agriculture Which new sources of agricultural growth can be captured cost effectively in particular in poor countries with large agricultural sectors as in Africa How can agricultural growth be made more effective for poverty reduction How can governments facilitate the transition of large populations out of agriculture without simply transferring the burden of rural poverty to urban areas How can the natural resource endowment for agriculture be protected How can agriculture's negative environmental effects be contained This year's report marks the 30th year the World Bank has been publishing the World Development Report

Re-conceiving Property Rights in the New Millennium Ben Chigara, 2013-03-01 This book constitutes volume two of a two volume examination of development community land issues in Southern Africa Following from volume one Southern African Development Community Land Issues this book considers the possibility of a new sustainable land relations policy for Southern African Development Community States SADC that are currently mired up in land disputes that have become subject of domestic regional and international tribunals Chigara demonstrates that land relations in the SADC have always been and will perhaps remain a matter for constitutional regulation Because constitutional laws are distinctive from other laws only by constitutional design legal contests appear to be the least likely means for settlement in the sub region Only human rights inspired policies that respond to the call for social justice by acknowledging both the current and the underlying contexts to the disputes hold the most potential to resolve these disputes The book recommends efficient pedagogical counter apartheid rule psychological distortions regarding the significance of human dignity PECAPDISH as a pre requisite and corollary to the dismantling of the salient physical legacy of apartheid rule in affected SADC States The book shows that PECAPDISH's potential and benefits would be enormous The book will be of interest to students and researchers of Property and Conveyancing Law Human Rights Law and Land Law

The New International Law Christoffer C. Eriksen, Marius Emberland, 2010-10-25 This volume contains revised versions of a select number of research papers presented at a conference in Oslo Norway entitled The New International Law The conference was subtitled Polycentric Decision making Structures and Fragmented Spheres of Law

What Implications for the New Generation of International Legal Discourse This subtitle signals the most important elements of the conference's main purpose which was to be a project in line with certain strands of contemporary scholarship on international law scholarship that bases itself on certain assumptions regarding what are important and changing preconditions for the field of international law research Such assumptions include the transformation of sovereignty the horizontal and vertical dispersal of governmental authority the incompleteness of municipal law for legal regulation of individuals and private entities states acceptance of treaty regimes whereby international authorities exercise regulatory power that interferes with domestic authority and the proliferation of new dispute settling bodies on the international plane The volume aims to display the diversity within the new generation of international legal scholarship and to bring the analyses and arguments of this research to a wider audience Topics addressed include environmental regulation human rights and humanitarian protection criminal law and international security and development
