The Lancashire Cotton Industry Mary B. Rose,1996 Industrial Policy in Britain 1945-1951 Martin Chick,2002-04-30

This is a detailed archive based study of the economic planning of the Attlee governments in which the author seeks to analyse the interaction between the decisions of central planners and the micro economic effects of these decisions Throughout the book Martin Chick pays particular attention to the level pattern and quality of fixed capital investment At the same time there is a continuous concern with the struggle between politicians economists and industrialists over the mix of pricing mechanisms and administrative orders which were to be used in this period This struggle permeated all discussions over matters such as the organisation of nationalised industries the monopoly structure of nationalised industries the allocation of resources and the promotion of higher productivity The author also asks what impact if any economic planning had on the productivity performance of the UK economy The Lancashire Giant Ross Murdoch Martin,2000-01-01 The Lancashire Giant tells the story of a nine year old cotton weaver who went on to carve out two extraordinary careers for himself In the first David Shackleton became a truly dominating presence in the Edwardian trade union movement was the third MP to be elected under the banner of the Labor party and played a critical role in the infancy of the party His second career begun at Winston Churchill s prompting in 1910 took him to the summit of the British civil service and to active participation in the deliberations of Lloyd George s War Cabinet Prominent union officials have frequently become government ministers but none has repeated Shackleton s achievement in becoming the permanent secretary of a ministry This distinctive career is presented and analysed in meticulous detail by Ross Martin The result is a thorough and rounded portrait strengthened by some suggestive analysis of Shackleton as a private individual Labor History An accessible detailed analytic and sympathetic study English Historical Review British Cotton Textiles: Maturity and Decline David Higgins,Steven Toms,2018-11-09 This book examines the decline of the cotton textiles industry which defined Britain as an industrial nation from its peak in the late nineteenth century to the state of the industry at the end of the twentieth century Focusing on the owners and managers of cotton businesses the authors examine how they mobilised financial resources their attitudes to industry structure and technology and their responses to the challenges posed by global markets The origins of the problems which forced the industry into decline are not found in any apparent loss of competitiveness during the long nineteenth century but rather in the disastrous refloating after the First World War As a consequence of these speculations rationalisation and restructuring became more difficult at the time when they were most needed and government intervention led to a series of partial solutions to what became a process of protracted decline In the post 1945 period the authors show how government policy encouraged capital withdrawal rather than encouraging the investment needed for restructuring The examples of corporate success since the Second World War such as David Alliance and his Viyella Group exploited government policy access to capital markets and closer relationships with retailers but were ultimately unable to respond effectively to international competition and the challenges of globalisation The chapters in this book were originally published in Business History and Accounting Business and Financial History

Empire of Cotton Sven Beckert, 2015-11-10 WINNER OF THE BANCROFT PRIZE A Pulitzer Prize finalist that is as unsettling as it is enlightening a book that brilliantly weaves together the story of cotton with how the present global world came to exist Masterly An astonishing achievement The New York Times The empire of cotton was from the beginning a fulcrum of constant global struggle between slaves and planters merchants and statesmen workers and factory owners Sven Beckert makes clear how these forces ushered in the world of modern capitalism including the vast wealth and disturbing inequalities that are with us today In a remarkably brief period European entrepreneurs and powerful politicians recast the world's most significant manufacturing industry combining imperial expansion and slave labor with new machines and wage workers to make and remake global capitalism

Churchill and Industrial Britain Jim Tomlinson, 2024-11-14 This book offers a new understanding of the main economic and political trends of 20th century Britain through the lens of Churchill's early career and approach to industrialisation Shedding fresh light on Churchill's political endeavours between 1900 and 1922 this study analyses his work within his political constituencies and highlights how he attempted to balance their local concerns with his larger imperial agenda Tomlinson guides readers through Britain's industrial challenges at the start of the twentieth century with a particular focus on the textile economies of Churchill's constituencies in Lancashire and Scotland and shows how industrial competition within the Empire exemplified the tensions between domestic economic policy and attempts at globalization and influenced Churchill's later politics Tomlinson acknowledges the role of the First World War in boosting the industrial output and bargaining power of countries within the Empire and analyses these alongside key moments in Churchill's early career such as his defeat at Dundee and time at the Exchequer In doing so the author highlights the context in which Churchill's ideas on the politics and economics of Empire were first formed particularly in relation to the impact of imperial economic policy on British domestic prosperity Ultimately this book delivers a new assessment of twentieth century British economic history in the light of Britain's relationship to the Empire and the first great globalization

Escape from the Market Michael Huberman, 1996-09-12 At the outset of the industrial revolution the Lancashire labour market was a model of thoroughgoing competition Wages adjusted quickly and smoothly to changes in the demand for and supply of labour Within two generations however workers and firms had retreated from the market Instead of busting wages firms paid fixed rates instead of breaking ties on short notice workers sought longer term associations Social norms doing the right thing protected and preserved the fresh labour market arrangements This book explains the causes and effects of changes in the labour market in the context of developments in labour economics and fresh research in social and economic history

Transport and the industrial city Peter Maw, 2018-02-28 This book presents the first scholarly study of the contribution of canals to Britain's industrial revolution Although the achievements of canal engineers remain central to popular understandings of industrialisation historians have been surprisingly reticent to analyse the full scope of the connections between canals transport and the first industrial revolution Focusing on Manchester Britain's major centre of both industrial and transport innovation it shows that canals were at the heart of the self-styled Cottonopolis Not only did canals move the key commodities of Manchester's industrial revolution coal corn and cotton but canal banks also provided the key sites for the factories that made Manchester the shock city of the early Victorian age This book will become essential reading for historians and students interested in the industrial revolution transport and the unique history of Manchester the world's first industrial city

The Political Economy of Nationalisation in Britain, 1920-1950 Robert Millward, John Singleton, 2002-04-18 In this 1998 book experts in British industrial history analyse the causes of nationalisation in the 1940s The Shock of the Old David Edgerton, 2011-08-29 From the books of H G Wells to the press releases of NASA we are awash in clichéd claims about high technology's ability to change the course of history Now in The Shock of the Old David Edgerton offers a startling new and fresh way of thinking about the history of technology radically revising our ideas about the interaction of technology and society in the past and in the present He challenges us to view the history of technology in terms of what everyday people have actually used and continue to use rather than just sophisticated inventions Indeed many highly touted technologies from the V2 rocket to the Concorde jet have been costly failures while many mundane discoveries like corrugated iron become hugely important around the world Edgerton reassesses the significance of such acclaimed inventions as the Pill and information technology and underscores the continued importance of unheralded technology debunking many notions about the implications of the information age A provocative history The Shock of the Old provides an entirely new way of looking historically at the relationship between invention and innovation High culture and tall chimneys James Moore, 2018-04-03 This new study examines how nineteenth century industrial Lancashire became a leading national and international art centre By the end of the century almost every major town possessed an art gallery while Lancashire art schools and artists were recognised at home and abroad The book documents the remarkable rise of visual art across the county along with the rise of the commercial and professional classes who supported it It examines how Lancashire looked to great civilisations of the past for inspiration while also embracing new industrial technologies and distinctively modern art movements This volume will be essential reading for all those with an interest in the new industrial society of the nineteenth century from art lovers and collectors to urban and social historians Empire, Politics and the Creation of the 1935 India Act Andrew Muldoon, 2016-05-06 The 1935 Government of India Act was arguably the most significant turning point in the history of the British administration in India The intent of the Act a proposal for an Indian federation was the continuation of British control of India and the deflection of the challenge to the Raj posed by Gandhi Nehru and the nationalist movement This book seeks to understand why British administrators and politicians believed that such a strategy would work and what exactly underpinned their reasons It is argued that British efforts to defuse and disrupt the activities of Indian nationalists in the interwar years were predicated on certain cultural beliefs about Indian political behaviour and capacity. However, this was not simply a case of Orientalist policy making. Faced with a complicated political situation, a staggering amount of information and a constant need to produce analysis, the officers of the Raj imposed their own cultural expectations upon events and evidence to render them comprehensible. Indians themselves played an often overlooked role in the formulation of this political intelligence, especially the relatively few Indians who maintained close ties to the colonial government, such as T B Sapru and M R Jayakar. These men were not just mediators as they have frequently been portrayed, but were in fact important tacticians whose activities further demonstrated the weaknesses of the colonial information economy. The author employs recently released archival material, including the Indian Political Intelligence records, to situate the 1935 Act in its multiple and overlapping contexts: internal British culture and politics, the imperial information order in India, and the politics of Indian nationalism. This rich and nuanced study is essential reading for scholars working on British Indian and imperial history.

Manufacturing the Cloth of the World Roger Holden, 2017. This well illustrated book is the first comprehensive study of the weaving sector of the Lancashire cotton industry to be published. The focus is on the development of weaving mills against the background of the economic development and organisation of the industry. Hand loom weaving was carried out in domestic premises or small workshops. Early power looms were installed in multi storey mills combined with spinning; the characteristic form of single storey shed with north light roof used solely for weaving developed later. The construction, power systems and layout of these mills are considered in detail. The book is based on original research looking at both the mills themselves and documentary sources including plans and company records. Manchester John J. Parkinson-Bailey, 2000. This work offers an examination of Manchester's architecture from its origins to the present day rebuilding of the city centre. It follows Manchester's growth from a village to what many see as England's second city.
