Land Above the Trees Ann H. Zwinger, Beatrice E. Willard, 2025-03-19 In a manner that accommodates the duality of art and science uncommonly well Ann Zwinger and Beatrice Willard conduct the reader across through and under the alpine scene As well as filling a unique and vital place on the bookshelf the triumph of this work is its harmonious blend of information with original creative expression The authors seem equally comfortable and refined at both translating science and creating art in a word and picture Ann Zwinger in a nouveau naturalist in the tradition of old describers yet one who adds a wholly fresh and modern orientation Beatrice Willard s ecological research has brought her both acclaim and deep insight her scholarly contribution is appreciated A grandly beautiful and powerfully authoritative text and folio and very important book The American West A very personally written yet universally appealing and important book about alpine tundras The numerous diagrams and flower drawings are outstanding Choice I like everything about this book from the fine title through the delicate detailed drawings to the informative and well written text It gives a clearer picture of life on the high mountains tundras than any other book I have read Edwin Way Teale This is the first comprehensive book on the ecology of the alpine tundra of the United States the area above tree limit which occurs on many western ranges and on the Presidential Peaks of New Hampshire s White Mountains Ann H Zwinger is a professional artist and the author of five other highly acclaimed nature books including RUN RIVER RUN winner of the John Burroughs Medal Beatrice E Willard Ph D was president of the Thorne Ecological Institute in Boulder Colorado member of the President s Council on Environmental Quality and a professor and director of the Department of Environmental Sciences at the Colorado School of Mines Land above the trees Ann H. Zwinger, 1972 Terrestrial Vegetation of California, 3rd Edition Michael Barbour, Todd Keeler-Wolf, Allan A. Schoenherr, 2007-07-17 This completely new edition of Terrestrial Vegetation of California clearly documents the extraordinary complexity and richness of the plant communities and of the state and the forces that shape them This volume is a storehouse of information of value to anyone concerned with meeting the challenge of understanding managing or conserving these unique plant communities under the growing threats of climate change biological invasions and development Harold Mooney Professor of Environmental Biology Stanford University The plants of California are under threat like never before Traditional pressures of development and invasive species have been joined by a newly recognized threat human caused climate change It is essential that we thoroughly understand current plant community dynamics in order to have a hope of conserving them This book represents an important well timed advance in knowledge of the vegetation of this diverse state and is an essential resource for professionals students and the general public alike Brent Mishler Director of the University Jepson Herbaria and Professor of Integrative Biology University of California Berkeley
