Global Economic Prospects, June 2015 The World Bank, 2015-06-22. Global growth is expected to be 2.8 percent in 2015 but is expected to pick up to 3.2 percent in 2016. Growth in developing countries and some high income countries is set to disappoint again this year. The prospect of rising borrowing costs will compound the challenges many developing countries are facing as they adapt to an era of low commodity prices. Risks to this outlook remain tilted to the downside. This edition of Global Economic Prospects includes two Special Features that analyze the policy challenges raised by the two transitions in developing countries: the risks associated with the first U.S. central bank interest rate increase since 2006 and the implications of persistently low commodity prices for low income countries. Global Economic Prospects is a World Bank Group Flagship Report that examines global economic developments and prospects with a special focus on developing countries on a semiannual basis in January and June. The January edition includes in depth analyses of topical policy challenges faced by developing countries while the June edition contains shorter analytical pieces.

These include economic liberalization where prices are set by market forces rather than by a central planning organization. In addition to this, trade barriers are removed, there is a push to privatize state owned enterprises, and resources state and collectively run enterprises are restructured as businesses, and a financial sector is created to facilitate macroeconomic stabilization and the movement of private capital. The process has been applied in China, the former Soviet Union, and Eastern bloc countries of Europe, and some Third world countries, and detailed work has been undertaken on its economic and social effects.
