The Early Evolutionary Imagination Emelie Jonsson,2021-09-29 Darwinian evolution is an imaginative problem that has been passed down to us unsolved It is our most powerful explanation of humanity s place in nature but it is also more cognitively demanding and less emotionally satisfying than any myth From the publication of the Origin of Species in 1859 evolution has pushed our capacity for storytelling into overdrive sparking fairy tales adventure stories political allegories utopias dystopias social realist novels and existential meditations Though this influence on literature has been widely studied it has not been explained psychologically This book argues for the adaptive function of storytelling integrates traditional humanist scholarship with current knowledge about the evolved and adapted human mind and calls for literary scholars to reframe their interpretation of the first authors who responded to Darwin H.G. English Fiction and the Evolution of Language, 1850-1914 Will Abberley, 2015-05-27 Victorian science changed language from a tool into a natural phenomenon evolving independently of its speakers Will Abberley explores how science and fiction interacted in imagining different stories of language evolution Popular narratives of language progress clashed with others of decay and degeneration Furthermore the blurring of language evolution with biological evolution encouraged Victorians to re imagine language as a mixture of social convention and primordial instinct Abberley argues that fiction by authors such as Charles Kingsley Thomas Hardy and H G Wells not only reflected these intellectual currents but also helped to shape them Genres from utopia to historical romance supplied narrative models for generating thought experiments in the possible pasts and futures of language Equally fiction that explored the instinctive roots of language intervened in debates about language standardisation and scientific objectivity These textual readings offer new perspectives on twenty first century discussions about language evolution and the language of science The World Set Free H. Oceania or the South Pacific loomed large in the Victorian popular imagination It was a world that interested the Victorians for many reasons all of which suggested to them that everything was possible there This collection of essays focuses on Oceania's impact on Victorian culture most notably travel writing photography international exhibitions literature and the world of children Each of these had significant impact The literature discussed affected mainly the middle and upper classes while exhibitions and photography reached down into the working classes as did missionary presentations The experience of children was central to the Pacific's effects as youthful encounters at exhibitions chapel home or school formed lifelong impressions and experience It would be difficult to fully understand the Victorians as they understood themselves without considering their engagement with Oceania While the contributions of India and Africa to the nineteenth century imagination have been well documented examinations of the contributions of Oceania have remained on the periphery of Victorian studies Oceania and the Victorian Imagination contributes significantly to our discussion of the non peripheral place of Oceania in Victorian culture Wilde's Wiles Annette M. Underground Writing David Welsh, 2010-05-04 The purpose of this book is to explore the ways in which the London Underground Tube was mapped by a number of writers from George Gissing to Virginia Woolf From late Victorian London to the end of the World War II underground writing created an imaginative world beneath the streets of London The real subterranean railway was therefore re enacted in number of ways in writing including as Dantean Underworld or hell as gateway to a utopian future as psychological looking glass or as place of safety and security The book is a chronological study from the opening of the first underground in the 1860s to its role in WW2 Each chapter explores perspectives on the underground in a number of writers starting with George Gissing in the 1880s moving through the work of H G Wells and into the writing of the 1920s 1930s including Virginia Woolf and George Orwell It concludes with its portrayal in the fiction poetry and art including Henry Moore of WW2 The approach takes a broadly cultural studies perspective crossing the boundaries of transport history literature and London urban studies It draws mainly on fiction but also uses poetry art journals postcards and posters to illustrate It links the actual underground trains tracks and stations to the metaphorical world of underground writing and places the writing in a social political context     The Fourth Dimension and Non-Euclidean Geometry in Modern Art, revised edition Linda Dalrymple Henderson, 2018-05-18 The long awaited new edition of a groundbreaking work on the impact of alternative concepts of space on modern art In this groundbreaking study first published in 1983 and unavailable for over a decade Linda Dalrymple Henderson demonstrates that two concepts of space beyond immediate perception the curved spaces of non Euclidean geometry and most important a higher fourth dimension of space were central to the development of modern art The possibility of a spatial fourth dimension suggested that our world might be merely a shadow or section of a higher dimensional existence That iconoclastic idea encouraged radical innovation by a variety of early twentieth century artists ranging from French Cubists Italian Futurists and Marcel Duchamp to Max Weber Kazimir Malevich and the artists of De Stijl and Surrealism In an extensive new Reintroduction Henderson surveys the impact of interest in higher dimensions of space in art and culture from the 1950s to 2000 Although largely eclipsed by relativity theory beginning in the 1920s the spatial fourth dimension experienced a resurgence during the later 1950s and 1960s In a remarkable turn of events it has returned as an important theme in contemporary culture in the wake of the emergence in the 1980s of both string theory in physics with its ten or eleven dimensional universes and computer graphics Henderson demonstrates the importance of this new conception of space for figures ranging from Buckminster Fuller Robert Smithson and the Park Place Gallery group in the 1960s to Tony Robbin and digital architect Marcos Novak     Regents' Proceedings University of Michigan.
