Global Garbage Exporting Trash And Toxic Waste:

Global Garbage Kathlyn Gay, 1992 Examines the increasing problems of toxic waste disposal including such areas as dumping in poor nations military dumping and waste disposal in space International Management of Hazardous Wastes Katharina Kummer, 1999 This work deals with the international response to one of the serious environmental problems we face transboundary traffic in hazardous wastes The book analyses the key international treaties in this field and proposes ways to build a comprehensive global waste management regime Transboundary Movements of Hazardous Wastes at the Interface of Environment and Trade Katharina Kummer, United Nations Environment Programme, 1994 In 1989 environmental concerns led to the adoption of the Basel Convention on the Control of Transboundary Movements of Hazardous Wastes their Disposal This publication outlines some of the facts about the international hazardous waste trade addressing the issue in the context of sustainable industrial activity in all countries It also discusses the Basel Convention looks at some aspects of the reconciliation of environmental trade objectives in the regulation of the international hazardous waste trade International Export of U.S. Waste United States. Congress. House. Committee on Government Operations. Environment, Energy, and Natural Resources Subcommittee, 1989 Trashing the Planet Stuart A. Kallen, 2017-08-01 On a global scale humans create around 2 6 trillion pounds of waste every year None of this trash is harmless landfills and dumps leak toxic chemicals into soil and groundwater while incinerators release toxic gases and particles into the air What can we do to keep garbage from swallowing up Earth Reducing reusing recycling and upcycling are some of the answers Learn more about the work of the US Environmental Protection Agency the Ocean Cleanup Array the zero waste movement and the many other government business research and youth efforts working to solve our planet s garbage crisis International and Domestic Environmental Regulation Katherine Melinda O'Neill, 1998 Resisting Global Toxics David Naguib Pellow, 2007-08-10 Examines the export of hazardous wastes to poor communities of color around the world and charts the global social movements that challenge them Every year nations and corporations in the global North produce millions of tons of toxic waste Too often this hazardous material inked to high rates of illness and death and widespread ecosystem damage is exported to poor communities of color around the world In Resisting Global Toxics David Naguib Pellow examines this practice and charts the emergence of transnational environmental justice movements to challenge and reverse it Pellow argues that waste dumping across national boundaries from rich to poor communities is a form of transnational environmental inequality that reflects North South divisions in a globalized world and that it must be theorized in the context of race class nation and environment Building on environmental justice studies environmental sociology social movement theory and race theory and drawing on his own research interviews and participant observations Pellow investigates the phenomenon of global environmental inequality and considers the work of activists organizations and networks resisting it He traces the transnational waste trade from its beginnings in the 1980s to the present day examining global garbage dumping the toxic pesticides that are the legacy of the Green Revolution in agriculture and today's scourge of dumping and remanufacturing high tech and electronics products The rise of the transnational environmental movements described in Resisting Global Toxics charts a pragmatic path toward environmental justice human rights and sustainability
