God And Realism:

God and Realism Peter Byrne, 2017-07-05 Peter Byrne's study of God and realism offers a critical survey of issues surrounding the realist interpretation of theism and theology. Byrne presents a general argument for interpreting the intent of talk about God in a realist fashion and argues that judging the intent of theistic discourse should be the primary object of concern in the philosophy of religion. He considers a number of important ideas and thinkers supporting global anti-realism and finds them all wanting. After the refutation of global anti-realism, Byrne considers a number of important arguments in favour of the notion that there is something specific to talk about God which invites an anti-realist interpretation of it. Here he looks at verificationism, the writings of Don Cupitt, forms of radical feminist theory and the ideas of D. Z. Phillips. The book concludes with a discussion of whether theology as a discursive academic discipline can be interpreted realistically. Offering a comprehensive survey of the topic and of the leading literature in the field, this book presents key arguments for exploring issues brought to bear upon the realism debate. Students and scholars of philosophy of religion, philosophy of language, metaphysics, theory of knowledge and theology will find this an invaluable new contribution to the field. Realism and Christian Faith Andrew Moore, 2003-03-27 Table of contents God the Created Benjamin J. Chicka, 2022-02-01 In God the Created Benjamin Chicka develops a method of inquiry and program for theology that he labels pragmatic constructive realism. While influenced most heavily by American pragmatism, especially that of Charles S. Peirce, Chicka's method draws upon a variety of sources ranging from Plato to Karl Popper, Paul Tillich and the field of biosemiotics. Chicka presents pragmatic constructive realism as a means of moving past binary debates between realism and antirealism in both philosophy and theology, and its fruitfulness is displayed by examining the philosophical theologies of John Cobb and Robert Cummings Neville. The result of that engagement is a novel hypothesis about God that embraces legitimate criticisms of both process theology, Cobb and ground of being theology, Neville, while integrating insights from both ways of thinking. God's transcendence and immanence, indeterminacy and determinacy are fully affirmed. The entire argument serves as an example of why a fallible and pluralistic form of theology, one that embraces and learns from difference instead of trying to eliminate it, is important for the future of theology. Realism and Religion Andrew Moore, Michael Scott, 2007 This book draws together a distinguished group of philosophers and theologians to present new thinking on realism and religion. The religious realism/antirealism debate concerns the questions of God's independence from human beings, the nature of religious truth, and our access to religious truths. Although both philosophers and theologians have written on these subjects, there has been little sustained investigation into these issues akin to that found in comparable areas of research such as ethics or the philosophy of science. The contributors present a variety of contrasting positions on key issues in the religious realism debate. This volume of original essays will both introduce newcomers to the field and suggest new lines of research for those already familiar with it. Appelros,2017-03-02 To claim to believe in God without accepting that God exists independently of human minds would mean reducing God to merely a human construct thus not real enough for being the object of religious worship This book sets out to challenge this common view on existence and religious belief Arguing from concrete examples of language use in children s make believe play and other ordinary situations Erica Appelros suggests that what makes us consider something to be real involves our capacities to relate to our surroundings not only on grounds of their physical characteristics but also on grounds of human construction This book makes a substantial contribution to the contemporary debate within philosophy of religion on religious realism and non realism and suggests innovative and constructive solutions to the perennial philosophical and religious issue of what is meant by talking about God and God s existence God Is Not a Story Francesca Aran Murphy,2007-07-19 A challenging critique of narrative theologies including the works of George Lindbeck Robert Jenson and Herbert McCabe Francesca Aran Murphy argues that the use of the concept of story or narrative in theology is circular and self referential and that the widespread notion that the role of the theologian is to tell God s story has not helped theology to advance the reality of its doctrines Murphy contends that the scriptural revelation on which Christian theology depends is not a story or a plot but a dramatic encounter between mysterious free and unpredictable persons She offers her own alternative approach making use of cinema and film theory and engaging in particular in a dialogue with the work of Hans Urs von Balthasar God in Postliberal Perspective Robert Andrew Cathey,2009 Who is God The variety of images of God tends to overwhelm us in the present age Is God a fiction of human construction or a reality that makes claims upon how we practice faith in God How does this quest for an understanding of God illumine who we are God in Postliberal Perspective presents an introduction to the doctrine and concept of God in contemporary philosophy and theology exploring how some theologians and philosophers dare to speak of God as real in our sceptical pluralistic and interfaith age Robert Cathey tours the house of realism as constructed by postliberal Christians David Burrell William Placher Bruce Marshall in conversation with living communities of faith and critical work in philosophy and theology and develops a distinctive argument about the relation of realism and non realism in constructing the doctrine of God in postliberal theology Offering a reading of postliberal theology which is open to critical discussion with other types of theology philosophy and faith traditions this book proposes a model of theological reflection that may be extended to the reality claims of a wide range of doctrines and concepts The God of Realism George Alexander Barrow,1923 Christian Realism and the New Realities Robin W. Lovin,2008-04-14 Robin W Lovin argues that the integration of religion and public life will benefit society more than their separation Constructive Realism, Incarnation, and Experience of God Jeffrey S. Privette,2021 Working at the borderlands of philosophy and theology Jeffrey Privette thinks theologically about epistemology both within the context of the realism versus antirealism debate and with sustained reference to the incarnation His study is divided into three parts the first and second deal with the role of language and interpretation in experience generally as well as with some of the curious philosophical problems foreshadowed by the predicament of language Here he offers a novel interpretation of Kant's transcendental distinction which when fully developed serves as a rich resource for theologies working consciously in the Christian tradition With the foundation of the argument in place the third part fleshes out the logic of the incarnation within the context of the life of incarnate Christian communities and so considers the complex relation of language and language practices to Christian experience

God's Call J. E. Hare, 2001 There has been a debate between modern ethicists who see moral judgments as objectively corresponding to a moral reality independent of human opinion and those who insist that moral judgments are essentially expressions of our will In this excellent philosophical work John Hare outlines a theory that combines the merits of both views arguing that what makes something right is that God calls us to it In the first chapter Hare gives a selective history of the sustained debate within Anglo American philosophy over the last century between moral realists and moral expressivists Best understood as a disagreement about how objectivity and subjectivity are related in value judgment this debate is of particular interest to Christians who necessarily feel pulled in both directions Christians want to say that value is created by God and exists whether we recognize it or not but they also want to say that when we value something our hearts fundamental commitments are also involved Hare suggests prescriptive realism as a way to bring both perspectives together The second chapter examines the divine command theory of John Duns Scotus looking particularly at the relationship that Scotus established between God's commands human nature and human will Hare shows that a Calvinist version of the divine command theory of obligation can be defended via Scotus against natural law theory as well as against contemporary challenges A significant theme treated here is the view that the Fall disordered our natural inclinations rendering them useless as an authoritative source of guidance for right living In the last chapter Hare moves to the key philosophical juncture between the medieval period and our own time the moral theory of Immanuel Kant in the late eighteenth century Modern moral philosophy has largely taken Kant's work as a refutation of divine command theory and a refocusing of the discussion on human autonomy Hare shows that Kant was in fact not arguing against the kind of divine command theory that Hare supports He discusses what Kant meant by saying that we should recognize our duties as God's commands and he defends a notion of human autonomy as appropriation Featuring original moral theory and fresh interpretations of the thought of Duns Scotus and Kant God's Call is valuable both for its overview of the history of moral debate and for its construction of a sound Christian ethic for today

Is the Kingdom of God Realism? E. Jones, 2018-03-22 If the hallmark of a great book is its ability to raise as many questions as it answers you have before you a great book Leonard Sweet Dr E Stanley Jones gratefully recognizes what science has done is doing and will do for the relief of organic disease For his part by spoken and written word he is pointing the way out for countless sad discouraged hopeless souls and in this book points to Him who above all others is able to drive from the soul of man all these unlovely harmful things through the expulsive power of a new affection Adrian S Taylor This book offers a fresh and powerful message to today's world a world bristling with its many challenges Each of these challenges has different causes but as Jones well knew and spent his life explaining all challenges whatever their cause find their solution in the soul of a person who knows their place in the Kingdom of God Anne Mathews Younes Kierkegaard, Language and the Reality of God Steven

Shakespeare,2017-07-12 This title was first published in 2001 Debate about the reality of God risks becoming an arid stalemate An unbridgeable gulf seems to be fixed between realists arguing that God exists independently of our language and beliefs and anti realists for whom God language functions to express human spiritual ideals with no reference to a reality external to the faith of the believer Soren Kierkegaard has been enlisted as an ally by both sides of this debate Kierkegaard Language and the Reality of God presents a new approach exploring the dynamic nature of Kierkegaard s texts and the way they undermine neat divisions between realism and anti realism objectivity and subjectivity Showing that Kierkegaard s understanding of language is crucial to his practice of communication and his account of the paradoxes inherent in religious discourse Shakespeare argues that Kierkegaard advances a form of ethical realism in which the otherness of God is met in the making of liberating signs Not only are new perspectives opened on Kierkegaard s texts but his own contribution to ongoing debates is affirmed in its vital creative and challenging significance Is God Real? Joseph Runzo,1993-04-27

The Realist Hope Christopher J. Insole,2016-02-24 Taking into consideration analytical continental historical post modern and contemporary thinkers Insole provides a powerful defence of a realist construal of religious discourse Insole argues that anti realism tends towards absolutism and hubris Where truth is exhausted by our beliefs about truth there is no conceptual space for doubting those beliefs only a conception of truth as absolute given and accessible can guarantee the very humility sense of fallibility and sensitivity to difference that the anti realist rightly values Cutting through some of the tired and well rehearsed debates in this area Insole provides a fresh perspective on approaches influenced by Wittgenstein Kant and apophatic theology The defence of realism offered is unusual in being both analytically precise and theologically sensitive with a view to some of the wider and less well explored cultural ethical and political implications of the debate

New Realism and Old Reality Daniel Luther Evans,1928 Introduction to Philosophy of Religion James Kellenberger,2017-09-29 Using various and competing religious sensibilities Introduction to the Philosophy of Religion helps students work through the traditional material and their own religious questions Critical Realism and Spirituality Mervyn Hartwig,Jamie Morgan,2013-03-01 Critical Realism and Spirituality contextualizes delineates explores and critiques the turn to spirituality and religion in critical realism which has been under way since the mid 1990s as well as telling its story It provides incisive discussion and anaysis of the following broad questions How does critical realism allow and facilitate the resolution of problems in the area of comparative religion Can it help you to justify your own faith or belief What are the implications of the new philosophy of meta Reality for traditional religious studies and how we organize and conduct our lives A range of distinguished critical realists theological critical realists and scholars working with related approaches
