Heron's Canoe

John Flanagan

Heron's Canoe:

Heron's Canoe Mark De Brito, 2003 Heron's Canoe explores the intersections and folds within the history of the collision between the cultures of Africa Europe and the Caribbean Focusing on the journey the Yoruba gods made with slaves from West Africa to the Caribbean on resonances with Amerindian myths concerning the scattering of their gods and on the transformations of each within the creolising hybridising culture of the Caribbean Mark De Brito's poem is a highly original meditation on the both the nature of the African diaspora and the nature of history He makes imaginative use of found text from historical sources translations of Yoruba prayers and invocations but there is always a deeply personal tone to these carefully crafted poems Heron's Canoe is the English translation for the Carib name of a constellation that lies in the region of Ursa Major significant to Amerindian myths of origin which Mark De Brito's poem connects to other myths of origin particularly those of West Africa which reached the Caribbean in the submerged belief systems and religions of the African slaves De Brito joins that small group of Caribbean poets and novelists whose work explores the existence of a distinctive Caribbean cosmology as the root of a nativist literary aesthetic De Brito's approach is both personal and intellectual as a Black British person who has explored his Trinidadian family roots and through them the manifestations of Africa in Trinidad in the Orisha chapelles but also as a writer inspired by the work of Wilson Harris in his emphasis on the importance of the broken and buried legacies of the Caribbean Mark De Brito was born and lives in the UK His family originated in Trinidad

Hiking, Cycling, and Canoeing in Maryland Bryan MacKay,1995 Voyages of Samuel de Champlain Samuel de Champlain,1882 Audubon ,1925 Canoeing in the Wilderness Henry David Thoreau,1916 The chief attraction that inspired Thoreau to make this canoe trip was the primitiveness of the region Here was a vast tract of almost virgin woodland peopled only with a few loggers and pioneer farmers Indians and wild animals No one could have been better fitted than Thoreau to enjoy such a region and to transmit his enjoyment of it to others For though he was a person of culture and refinement with a college education and had for an intimate friend so rare a man as Ralph Waldo Emerson he was half wild in many of his tastes and impatient of the restraints and artificiality of the ordinary social life of the towns and cities He liked especially the companionship of men who were in close contact with nature and in this book we find him deeply interested in his Indian guide and lingering fondly over the man s characteristics and casual remarks The Indian retained many of his aboriginal instincts and ways though his tribe was in most respects civilized His home was in an Indian village on an island in the Penobscot River at Oldtown a few miles above Bangor Thoreau was one of the world s greatest nature writers and as the years pass his fame steadily increases He was a careful and accurate observer more at home in the fields and woods than in village and town and with a gift of piquant originality in recording his impressions The play of his imagination is keen and nimble yet his fancy is so well balanced by his native common sense that it does not run away with him There is never any doubt about his genuineness or that what he states is free from bias and romantic exaggeration
