Social Structure, Space and Possession in Tongan Culture and Language Svenja Völkel, 2010. This interdisciplinary study investigates the relationship between culture, language and cognition based on the aspects of social structure, space and possession in Tonga, Polynesia. Grounded on extensive field research, Völkel explores the subject from an anthropological as well as from a linguistic perspective. The book provides new insights into the language of respect, an honorific system which is deeply anchored in the societal hierarchy, spatial descriptions that are determined by socio-cultural and geocentric parameters, kinship terminology and possessive categories that perfectly express the system of social status inequalities among relatives. These examples impressively show that language is deeply anchored in its cultural context. Moreover, the linguistic structures reflect the underlying cognitive frame of its speakers. Just as several cultural practices, sitting order, access to land and gift exchange processes, the linguistic means are not only expressions of stratified social networks but also tools to maintain or negotiate the underlying socio-cultural system.

A Leftist Critique of the Principles of Identity, Diversity, and Multiculturalism Richard Anderson-Connolly, 2019-06-18. Identity politics is a lightning rod in American society. To both its progressive supporters and conservative critics, it is seen as defining the agenda of the Left. Both sides are wrong. Identity politics is not a leftist project. Instead, it enables the neoliberal political economy that has caused historic levels of inequality and triggered repression and mass incarceration to deal with the social wreckage. Identity politics is a form of biological essentialism, impeding morality built upon universal humanism and politics built upon solidarity. Unlike the conservative assaults, this book avoids the trivial and silly pronouncements of identity politics, a term generally avoided in the work as loaded and pejorative. It challenges the following key principles of the Identity, Diversity, and Multiculturalism Program: Diversity as Justice: the most important struggle for justice today is increasing the representation throughout society of individuals from historically marginalized groups by ending discrimination on the grounds of race, gender, sexual orientation, and similar characteristics; Colorblindness as Racism: race-neutral solutions to the problems caused by racism are harmful to blacks; Race as Culture: members of different races, specifically blacks and whites in the United States, belong to different cultures; Culture as Virtue: cultures should be respected and celebrated. This book forcefully argues that none of these tenets is or rather should be a leftist commitment. For progressives who accept the principles, it poses a challenge: How do you defend them from a leftist critique, one that does not deny the continuing significance of discrimination, rather than from the weaker attacks of conservatives? For those on the Right, this work represents a threat: Once leftists return to their core commitments, they will form a powerful movement for political and economic change.

Generations Liu Jieyu, 2025-11-25 An interconnected nuanced and nonlinear view of Chinese family life since 1949 With Embedded Generations Liu Jieyu offers a comprehensive examination of Chinese family life since the Chinese Communist Revolution of 1949 Grounding her account in the analysis of 260 life history narratives and rich ethnographic data Liu traces the changing ways families have navigated such experiential milestones as childhood courtship and marriage sex and intimacy and aging over the past seven decades Using generation the urban rural divide and gender as her analytical lenses she provides an alternative narrative of Chinese family life countering the dominant Eurocentric accounts of modernization and family change Liu proposes the concept of embedded generations to capture the ongoing relational and socioeconomic shaping of family life taking account of variation within and across generations and of both intergenerational transmission and individual adaptations to changing conditions of everyday life Resisting the notion that social and family changes are linear historical progressions Liu reveals a family portrait of complex change continuity and diversity Rather than a straightforward transition from the traditional to the modern and postmodern she argues changes in Chinese family life have entailed the adaptation and re serving of traditional ideas and practices to produce a bricolage of modern and traditional elements

Ian Hogbin, 2021-01-07 The economic and political systems legal code and religious beliefs of the people of the New Guinea village of Busama were analysed by H Ian Hogbin in his earlier work Transformation Scene 1951 In this new study founded on field work carried out at intervals over a seven year period he is concerned primarily with the individual in his relations with the kinship structure He takes a typical Busama through a full span of life from birth through infancy childhood adolescence and marriage to maturity and death and he shows how each stage in the individual s life involves a change in his kinship relationships and responsibilities This approach gives the professional anthropologist a set of carefully presented data analysed in line with the contemporary emphasis on seeing the relations between kin in the context of the local community and it also offers the general reader an enjoyable and authentic account of the intimacies of Melanesian life
