Livelihoods and Learning Caroline Dyer, 2014-05-30 Current paradigms of development generally serve mobile pastoralist groups poorly their visibility in policy processes is minimal and their mobility is constructed by the powerful as a problem rather than as a rational livelihood strategy Increasingly damaged eco systems shrinking natural resources globalisation and urbanisation all put pressure on pastoralist livelihoods Such processes often worsen rather than alleviate poverty and socio economic marginalisation among pastoralists but they also precipitate engagement with forms of education that may improve their future livelihood security and social status and enhance occupational diversification Opening with a discussion of how the relationships between education poverty and development have been conceived in dominant development discourses this book reviews the disappointing international experience of education provision to mobile pastoralist groups It highlights a lack of sufficient flexibility and relevance to changing livelihoods and more fundamentally education s conceptual location within a sedentarist paradigm of development that is antagonistic to mobility as a legitimate livelihood strategy These global themes are examined in India where policy and practices of education inclusion for mobile marginalised groups are critiqued Empirically based chapters drawing on ethnographic research provide detailed insights into how the Rabaris of Kachchh a pastoralist community in Gujarat Western India engage with education as a social and economic development strategy for both adults and children and show how ethnographic and participatory research approaches can be used for policy advocacy for marginalised groups Livelihoods and Learning highlights the complex contested and often inconsistent role of education in development and the social construction of poverty and calls for a critical reappraisal of the notion of education The book will be key reading for postgraduates and academics in education development studies international and comparative education and research methodology as well as policy makers ministries and related agencies with responsibility for education

Education, Mobilities and Migration Madeleine Arnot,Claudia Schneider,Oakleigh Welply,2018-02-05 Within the context of increased global migration and mobility education occupies a central role which is being transformed by new human movements and cultural diversity flows and networks Studies under the umbrella terms of migration mobility and mobilities reveal the complexity of these concepts The field of study ranges from global child mobility as a response to poverty to the reconceptualising of notions of inclusion in relation to pastoralist lifestyles to the ways in which new offshore institutions and transnational diasporas shape the educational experiences of students families and teachers At the heart of this new research is a need to explore how identity integration and social stratification play a role in the story of global migration between and within the Global North and South This volume focuses on three major themes poverty migration social mobility and social reproduction networks of migration within and across national education systems and higher education and international student mobility and the concerns and opportunities that go along with this mobility The international group of researchers who have contributed to this book demonstrate how educational institutions are part of a common global project characterised by fluidity how the social fabric of educational institutions responds to demographic diversity and how new social differentiations occur as a result of human movement By bringing together these contributions a number of important theoretical and empirical methodological dimensions are identified that need more attention within the growing field of migration and education studies This volume shows how mobilities and transnational interconnectedness create multiple interactions that tie our different educational projects together This book was originally published as a special issue of Compare A Journal of Comparative and International Education Hearings United States.
