Davies, 2016-02-17 Change programmes in both private and public sectors have a poor record of delivering their intended value The reasons given most often for their failure include lack of executive support or buy in from key users loose requirements definition weak programme management and plain wishful thinking They rarely include technical limitations Value Management puts forward the view that the true problem lies in failing to understand the causal links between the intended stakeholder outcomes and the actual programme outputs Repeating the pattern of failure can be avoided by asking two questions Before implementation what capabilities must a change programme deliver when and in what order so as to cause intended value against a defined purpose with speed and certainty During and after implementation what minor adjustments and or major shifts are needed to be certain that the programme remains on purpose and on value and two answers to be given Target time and align change programmes to deliver maximum intended value to stakeholders the baseline business case track and respond to changes during and beyond implementation to ensure that the programme actually delivers or exceeds intended value value realisation The authors show how by asking and answering these questions direction and delivery of any programme can be clarified and greater economic value achieved Integrated Models for Information Communication Systems and Networks: Design and Development Atayero, Aderemi Aaron Anthony, Sheluhin, Oleg I., 2013-06-30 With current advancements in the modeling and simulation of systems and networks researchers and developers are better able to determine the probable state of current systems and envision the state of future systems during the design stage The uses and accuracies of these models are essential to every aspect of communication systems Integrated Models for Information Communication Systems and Networks Design and Development explores essential information and current research findings on information communication systems and networks This reference source aims to assist professionals in the desire to enhance their knowledge of modeling at systems level with the aid of modern software packages

Catastrophes and Unexpected Behavior Patterns in Complex Artificial Populations Stanislaw Raczynski, 2021-07-05 A major objective of this monograph is to present an agent based simulation of artificial populations The focus is on possible unexpected or catastrophic events that may spontaneously appear in simulations A short recall of the tenets of the theory of catastrophes is given Several examples of artificial society simulations are provided as the main topic of the book With agent based modeling possible catastrophes and unexpected events in artificial populations are simulated The book presents a new modeling and simulation tool applied to social system simulation The models are coded in the object and agent oriented language Bluesss Blues Simulation System related to the C language The program code consists of a series of generic declarations of processes Each of them includes a number of events that are coded in C At the runtime a population of objects is generated All the objects agents start to execute their own events and interact with one another During the simulations it is possible to observe the macro behavior of the population where some unexpected or catastrophic events occur The examples include a stock market crash catastrophes in extended prey predator systems growing organisms and cancer epidemics social inequality and economic decay mass service systems and more Remarks on possible simultaneous events are also included
