Lectures On Evolution:

Lectures on Evolution Thomas Henry Huxley, 2024-02-12 We live in and form part of a system of things of immense diversity and perplexity which we call Nature and it is a matter of the deepest interest to all of us that we should form just conceptions of the constitution of that system and of its past history With relation to this universe man is in extent little more than a mathematical point in duration but a fleeting shadow he is a mere reed shaken in the winds of force But as Pascal long ago remarked although a mere reed he is a thinking reed and in virtue of that wonderful capacity of thought he has the power of framing for himself a symbolic conception of the universe which although doubtless highly imperfect and inadequate as a picture of the great whole is yet sufficient to serve him as a chart for the guidance of his practical affairs It has taken long ages of toilsome and often fruitless labour to enable man to look steadily at the shifting scenes of the phantasmagoria of Nature to notice what is fixed among her fluctuations and what is regular among her apparent irregularities and it is only comparatively lately within the last few centuries that the conception of a universal order and of a definite course of things which we term the course of Nature has emerged Lectures on Evolution Thomas Henry

Huxley, 2004-06 The French expedition to Egypt had called the attention of learned men to the wonderful store of antiquities in that country and there had been brought back to France numerous mummified corpses of the animals which the ancient Egyptians revered and preserved and which at a reasonable computation must have lived not less than three or four thousand years before the time at which they were thus brought to light Our Heredity from God Edward Payson

The Berlin Discussion of the Problem of Evolution Erich Wasmann, S.J.,2016-04-14 First published in 1909 this book collects the author s lectures on the problem of evolution and the resultant debate The first considers the validity of the Theory of Evolution and whether it is in opposition to the Christian view of creation The second examines the assertion that evolution harmonises only with Monism rather than Theism and which of the two views is preferable It also looks at the popular identification of Darwinism with evolution if it is scientific and the results this leads to The third looks at man s position in the problem of evolution whether we are bound to bring in considerations higher than the zoological and the evidence for our descent from brutes

Evolutionary Restraints Mark E. Borrello,2010-10-15 Much of the evolutionary debate since Darwin has focused on the level at which natural selection occurs Most biologists acknowledge multiple levels of selection from the gene to the species The debate about group selection however is the focus of Mark E Borrello s

Evolutionary Restraints Tracing the history of biological attempts to determine whether selection leads to the evolution of fitter groups Borrello takes as his focus the British naturalist V C Wynne Edwards who proposed that animals could regulate their own populations and thus avoid overexploitation of their resources By the mid twentieth century Wynne Edwards became an advocate for group selection theory and led a debate that engaged the most significant evolutionary biologists of his time including Ernst Mayr G C Williams and Richard Dawkins This important dialogue bled out into broader conversations about population regulation environmental crises and the evolution of human social behavior By examining a single facet in the long debate about evolution Borrello provides powerful insight into an intellectual quandary that remains relevant and alive to this day
