Leaving Home The Art Of Separating From Your Difficult Family:

Leaving Home David P. Celani, 2005 Giving up family attachments that failed to meet our needs as children David Celani argues is the hardest psychological task an adult can undertake Yet the reality is that many adults re create the most painful aspects of their early relationships with their parents in new relationships with peers and romantic partners frustrating themselves and discouraging them from leaving their family of origin Leaving Home emphasizes the life saving benefits of separating from destructive parents and offers a viable program for personal emancipation David P Celani, 2011 Relinquishing family attachments that failed to meet childhood needs is the most difficult task individuals can undertake as they grow into adulthood Leaving Home not only emphasizes the life saving benefits of separating from toxic parents but also offers a viable program for personal emancipation David P Celani centers his program on Object Relations Theory a branch of psychoanalysis developed by Scottish analyst Ronald Fairbairn The human personality Fairbairn argued is not the result of inherited and thus immutable instincts Rather the developing child builds internal relational templates rooted in conscious and unconscious memories he internalized in childhood and these guide his future interactions with others While an attachment to neglectful or even abusive parents is not uncommon there is a way out Eloquent relatable and filled with rich examples taken from more than two decades of clinical practice Leaving Home outlines the practical steps necessary to become a healthy adult

Intercultural Therapy Baffour Ababio, Roland Littlewood, 2019-01-31 Intercultural Therapy Challenges Insights and Developments examines the impact of the work of the Nafsiyat Intercultural Therapy Centre in North London which focused on providing free psychodynamic therapy Set up by Jafar Kareem the centre was the first psychotherapy service with the specific task of offering psychodynamic psychotherapy to Britain's Black and ethnic minority population The editors of this book have invited

a number of Nafsiyat therapists and colleagues to give their view on what has changed or not changed in regard to the integration of intercultural issues into mainstream therapy Intercultural Therapy will be of interest to all psychotherapists working in multicultural practices as well as practitioners and social workers

Fairbairn's Object Relations Theory in the Clinical Setting David P. Celani, 2010 W R D Fairbairn 1889 1964 challenged the dominance of Freud's drive theory with a psychoanalytic theory based on the internalization of human relationships Fairbairn assumed that the unconscious develops in childhood and contains dissociated memories of parental neglect insensitivity and outright abuse that are impossible for the children to tolerate consciously In Fairbairn's model these dissociated memories protect developing children from recognizing how badly they are being treated and allow them to remain attached even to physically abusive parents Attachment is paramount in Fairbairn's model as he recognized that children are absolutely and unconditionally dependent on their parents Kidnapped children who remain attached to their abusive captors despite opportunities to escape illustrate this intense dependency even into adolescence At the heart of Fairbairn's model is a structural theory that organizes actual relational events into three self and object pairs one conscious pair the central ego which relates exclusively to the ideal object in the external world and two mostly unconscious pairs the child's antilibidinal ego which relates exclusively to the rejecting parts of the object and the child's libidinal ego which relates exclusively to the exciting parts of the object The two dissociated self and object pairs remain in the unconscious but can emerge and suddenly take over the individual's central ego When they emerge the other is misperceived as either an exciting or a rejecting object thus turning these internal structures into a source of transferences and reenactments Fairbairn's central defense mechanism splitting is the fast shift from central ego dominance to either the libidinal ego or the antilibidinal ego a near perfect model of the borderline personality disorder In this book David Celani reviews Fairbairn's five foundational papers and outlines their application in the clinical setting He discusses the four unconscious structures and offers the clinician concrete suggestions on how to recognize and respond to them effectively in the heat of the clinical interview Incorporating decades of experience into his analysis Celani emphasizes the internalization of the therapist as a new good object and devotes entire sections to the treatment of histrionic obsessive and borderline personality disorders
