Building Blocks of Society James W. Cortada, 2020-11-25 The history of information is a rapidly emerging new subfield of history. Historians are identifying the issues they need to examine, crafting novel research agendas and locating research materials relevant to their work. Like the larger world around them, historians are discovering what it means to live and work in a world that increasingly sees itself as an information society. Long a discussion point among sociologists, economists, political leaders and media experts, historians are integrating their methods and research into the larger conversation. This book proposes a way to look at the history of information and to history as a whole that is simultaneously relevant to observers in other disciplines and familiar to historians of business, economics, sociology and technology. The author presents that advocacy in two ways: with theoretical and historiographical discussions of what information ecosystems and infrastructures are and their value for this kind of research; second, through a range of case studies applying those concepts. The wide range of case studies is purposeful in demonstrating the applicability of the ideas presented in the early methodological chapters. Themes mentioned in each of the early chapters are consistently applied in all subsequent chapters. This book breaks from the more traditional historiography of book history, sociological and philosophical discussions about knowledge and society. The first two chapters focus on the craft of the historian in this new field, better known as historiography and methods. Subsequent chapters are case studies showing what results when a historian writes about ecosystems and infrastructures, moving our discussion from theory to practice. The book is an important and substantive contribution to this new subfield, an essential primer as well as a major statement for all historians on how next to evolve their craft.

Beyond Bias and Barriers Institute of Medicine, National Academy of Engineering, National Academy of Sciences, Committee on Science, Engineering, and Public Policy, Committee on Maximizing the Potential of Women in Academic Science and Engineering, 2007-06-04 The United States economy relies on the productivity, entrepreneurship and creativity of its people. To maintain its scientific and engineering leadership amid increasing economic and educational globalization, the United States must aggressively pursue the innovative capacity of all its people, women and men. However, women face barriers to success in every field of science and engineering, obstacles that deprive the country of an important source of talent. Without a transformation of academic institutions to tackle such barriers, the future vitality of the U.S. research base and economy are in jeopardy. Beyond Bias and Barriers explains that eliminating gender bias in academia requires immediate overarching reform, including decisive action by university administrators, professional societies, federal funding agencies and foundations, government agencies and Congress. If implemented and coordinated across public, private and government sectors, the recommended actions will help to improve workplace environments for all employees while strengthening the foundations of America's competitiveness.

Digital Nation Anthony G. Wilhelm, 2006-02-17 The long-term social benefits of building an inclusive information society: a national action plan. As our social institutions migrate into cyberspace the digitally disenfranchised face increasing hardships What happens when in search of quick and cheap fixes a government office shuts down and is replaced by a public Web site What happens when a company accepts only online job applications Inevitably those most in need of the services and opportunities offered are further marginalized In Digital Nation Tony Wilhelm shows us how to build a more inclusive information society offering a plan that reaps the benefits offered by the new technology while avoiding the pitfalls of social exclusion Technology he tells us isn't the problem it's the use of technology that can empower or control unite or divide we need to recover the ideas of social justice and fairness that have been lost in the rush to make things faster and cheaper In Wilhelm's vision of an inclusive digital nation everyone can take advantage of the new technology With everyone part of the information society we can revolutionize the way we educate our citizens deliver healthcare and engage in productive work The result will be increased efficiency and productivity that will lead to long term savings of billions of dollars and an enhanced quality of life as technology expands choice and opportunity We can begin to bring this about by expanding access to computers and making it easier to acquire digital literacy skills To do nothing to turn a blind eye to the promise of an inclusive technology would cost us socially and economically Digital Nation's call for action sets the terms for a new debate on bridging the digital divide Governance and Information Technology Viktor Mayer-Schönberger, David Lazer, 2007 Experts discuss moving beyond the notion of electronic government and its focus on technology and efficiency to a broader concept of information government that incorporates the role of information flows within government between government and citizens and among citizens themselves The Support Economy Shoshana Zuboff, James Maxmin, 2004-01-27 Today's managerial capitalism has grown hopelessly out of touch with the people it should be serving The Support Economy explores the chasm between people and corporations and reveals a new society of individuals who seek relationships of advocacy and trust that provide support for their complex lives Unlocking the wealth of these new markets can unleash the next great wave of wealth creation but it requires a radically new approach distributed capitalism The Support Economy is a call to action for every citizen who cares about the future
