The Critical Period Hypothesis

Neurological Considerations

Psychomotor Consideration

Affective Considerations

Fossilization

Is used to label the process by which non-target norms become fixed in interlanguage.

- age
- lack of desire to articulate
- communication pressure
- lack of opportunities

Implications for Language Teachers

researchers have tried to explain how children progress from "no language" to their mother tongue

However, in the acquisition of the second language, the process is more complicated since the students already have knowledge of their first language.

Harris,1992-01-23 This collection of 33 papers represents the most current thinking and research on the study of cognitive processing in bilingual individuals. Academic Assessment and Intervention Steven Little, Angeleque Akin-Little,2014-01-21 Serving students with academic deficiencies necessitates communication and collaboration among professionals from several disciplines. Academic Assessment and Intervention brings together divergent approaches in order to demonstrate that scientific evidence rather than biases or previous practice must determine assessment practices that are selected and used for particular purposes. Similar to a handbook in its comprehensive topical coverage, this edited collection provides a contextual foundation for academic assessment and intervention, describes both norm-referenced and curriculum-based assessment measurement in detail, considers the implications of both of these assessments on ethnically diverse populations, provides a clear link between assessment evidence-based interventions and the RTI model, and considers other important topics related to this area such as teacher behavior. Intended primarily for graduate-level courses in education, school psychology, or child clinical psychology, it will also be of interest to practicing professionals in these fields.

Bilingualism and Language Disability (PLE: Psycholinguistics) Nick Miller,2013-11-12 Society is becoming increasingly multilingual, and this presents monolingual professionals, particularly those in special education and speech pathology, with severe problems. Is the language delay in a child from a bilingual environment a result of this background, or is there a specific speech problem? Is a child's poor performance in school due to his problems of coping with two languages, or does he need remedial teaching? Originally published in 1984, this book is not concerned with second language learning but with speech and learning difficulties in bilingual children as they are presented to remedial teachers, psychologists, and speech therapists. To this end, the first group of specially written articles deals with the patterns of language usage in bilingual communities and the social and psychological factors which shape these patterns with processes in normal bilingual language acquisition and with the relationship between cognitive development and growing up with two languages. Management issues and methods involved in helping children with language problems are also tackled; they include taking case histories, family liaison, counselling, bilingual programmes, mother tongue teaching, curriculum development, and the training of personnel to work in the bilingual bicultural field This book provided a great deal of practical help in a field that was relatively new at the time of writing and helped to enlighten readers on the issues involved and assist in crystalising thought and directing future research Promoting Plurilingualism Klaus-Börge Boeckmann, Anna Lasselsberger, Council of Europe, 2012-01-01

Traditionally teachers of majority languages receive less training to teach a language as a second language or to develop the plurilingual repertoire of their learners than for example foreign language teachers Yet in today's societies learners bring many different languages to school This means that the teaching of the majority language has to extend beyond teaching it as a first language and adopt elements of second language teaching This publication aims to encourage teachers to become agents of reform for the promotion of plurilingualism in majority language teaching The range of proposed actions includes small scale activities such as planning a lesson relating to a specific aspect of grammar which incorporates all languages spoken in the classroom More comprehensive strategic approaches proposed in the materials involve head teachers or parents The ACT Approach Lynn Dhority, 1991 First Published in 1992 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

The Temporal Dynamics of Cognitive Processing Timothy Michael Ellmore, Peter Ford Dominey, John Magnotti, 2016-07-26 From our ability to attend to many stimuli occurring in rapid succession to the transformation of memories during a night of sleep cognition occurs over widely varying time scales spanning milliseconds to days and beyond Cognitive processing is often influenced by several behavioral variables as well as nonlinear interactions between multiple neural systems This frequently produces unpredictable patterns of behavior and makes understanding the underlying temporal factors influencing cognition a fruitful area of hypothesis development and scientific inquiry Across two reviews a perspective and twelve original research articles covering the domains of learning memory attention cognitive control and social decision making this research topic sheds new light on the temporal dynamics of cognitive processing
