HANDBOOK OF VISUAL PERCEPTUAL TRAINING

The authors present here a unique guide to programming for alleviation of visual perceptual dysfunction. The suggested activities involve the entire realm of sensory modalities and are developed from motor-perceptual functioning. The training consists of sequentially ordered tasks and moves from gross to fine motor activities and from use of concrete objects to methods of abstraction. Sound educational objectives are within each purpose. The training objectives have been developed to include all aspects of speech and language development.

for many of the developments in these areas This book is written for anyone who wants to understand the phenomena and theories of perceptual learning or to apply the technology of perceptual learning to the development of training methods and products Our aim is to provide an introduction to those researchers and students just entering this exciting field to provide a comprehensive and integrated treatment of the phenomena and the theories of perceptual learning for active perceptual learning researchers and to describe and develop the basic techniques and principles for readers who want to successfully incorporate perceptual learning into applied developments The book considers the special challenges of perceptual learning that balance the competing goals of system stability and system adaptability It provides a systematic treatment of the major phenomena and models in perceptual learning the determinants of successful learning and of specificity and transfer The book provides a cohesive consideration of the broad range of perceptual learning through the theoretical framework of incremental learning of reweighting evidence that supports successful task performance It provides a detailed analysis of the mechanisms by which perceptual learning improves perceptual limitations the relationship of perceptual learning and the critical period of development and the semi supervised modes of learning that dominate perceptual learning It considers limitations and constraints on learning multiple tasks and stimuli simultaneously the implications of training at high or low levels of performance accuracy and the importance of feedback to perceptual learning The basis of perceptual learning in physiology is discussed along with the relationship of visual perceptual learning to learning in other sensory domains The book considers the applications of perceptual learning in the development of expertise in education and gaming in training during development and aging and applications to remediation of mental health and vision disorders Finally it applies the phenomena and models of perceptual learning to considerations of optimizing training

The Oxford Handbook of Developmental Psychology, Vol. 1 Philip David Zelazo, 2013-01-15 Research in developmental psychology which examines the history origins and causes of behavior and age related changes in behavior seeks to construct a complex multi level characterization of behavior as it unfolds in time across a range of time scales from the milliseconds of reaction time to the days and weeks of childhood the decades of the human lifespan and even beyond to multiple generations Behavior in this view is embedded within what is essentially a dynamic system of relations extending deep within individuals Thorough and engaging this handbook explores the impact of this research on what is now known about psychological development from birth to biological maturity and it highlights the extent to which the most cutting edge developmental science reflects a new kind of intellectual synthesis one that reveals how cultural social cognitive neural and molecular processes work together to yield human behavior and changes in human behavior With insightful contributions from more than 50 of the world's leading developmental scientists these two volumes will serve as an influential and informed text for students and as an authoritative desk reference for years to come

Perceptual Learning Manfred Fahle, Tomaso Poggio, 2002 Perceptual learning is the specific and relatively permanent modification of perception and behaviour following sensory experience This book presents

advances made during the 1990s in this rapidly growing field

Perceptual Learning Kevin Connolly, 2019-01-16 Experts from wine tasters to radiologists to bird watchers have all undergone perceptual learning long term changes in perception that result from practice or experience Philosophers have been discussing such cases for centuries from the 14th century Indian philosopher Vedanta Desika to the 18th century Scottish philosopher Thomas Reid and into contemporary times This book uses recent evidence from psychology and neuroscience to show that perceptual learning is genuinely perceptual rather than post perceptual It also offers a taxonomy for classifying cases in the philosophical literature In some cases perceptual learning involves changes in how one attends in other cases it involves a learned ability to differentiate two properties or to perceive two properties as unified Connolly uses this taxonomy to rethink several domains of perception in terms of perceptual learning including multisensory perception color perception and speech perception As a whole the book offers a theory of the function of perceptual learning Perceptual learning embeds into our quick perceptual systems what would be a slower task were it to be done in a controlled cognitive manner A novice wine taster drinking a Cabernet Sauvignon might have to think about its features first and then infer the type of wine while an expert can identify it immediately This learned ability to immediately identify the wine enables the expert to think about other things like the vineyard or the vintage of the wine More generally perceptual learning serves to free up cognitive resources for other tasks This book offers a comprehensive empirically informed account and explores the nature scope and theoretical implications of perceptual learning

The Roles of Representation in Visual Perception Robert French, Berit Brogaard, 2024-05-30 This volume contains new papers addressing a number of new and traditional issues pertaining to the roles of representations in visual perception Among these issues is the one concerning the nature of the perceptual state itself e g on the issue of whether the perceptual state like its distal objects is structured for instance by possessing a spatial character Other issues include those of whether at least aspects of the distal object are presented immediately to us visually whether representation plays any interesting role in disjunctivist and naïve realist accounts of visual experience and the relationship among visual perception attention and representation The anthology includes a wide variety of positions on the subject of the roles of representations in visual perception which would help to close the literature gap and will be of interest to scholars from all schools and trends of philosophy of mind
