A Handful of Dreams Mon Roig Viladoms,2005-06-05 A Handful of Dreams is a project that took me over ten years five heart breaks and a husband to complete Now seriously this is a dream I had when I was sixteen and it has been taking shape with every new so to say twist of the road The book compiles over 90 poems organised under four headlines which try to analyse different ways of dreaming The first one is called Castles In The Air and it is a collection of poems about language and the aim to find your own voice In them one can see the impact of some deconstruction theories I came across in college In short Coming from a bilingual society speaking five languages myself and having chosen a foreign language to be the vehicle of my work besides the fact I am a Philologist the voice and the art to convey what lies within is of course one of my main concerns The second block Delusion compiles poems written with a bitter pen They tell stories of delusion with people and lovers but despite some lines may sound even somewhat harsh they are lessons one must learn and from which to grow Meeting my husband and the stability he has brought about can be seen in some poems from Reverie Maybe these are the most light hearted of all and with some poems sincerely dedicated to my best friends and family At the end of the day they are like the almond tree flowers in the middle of winter the hope of life and the assurance of beauty in the world Awakening was the only logical ending for a dream Here rather than waking up from a dream it is eventually finding your voice These poems deal with issues such as women s rights identity respect and more important even self respect But poets should never talk much about their work it is the work that must speak to the reader being the latter the only author in the end I only hope mine do this as well Cheers taboo as only authentic testimony documents or at least unliterary prosaic approaches were seen as appropriate. However from the very beginning of Holocaust literature and culture there were tendencies towards literarization, poetization and ornamentalization. Nowadays aesthetic approaches also in provocative taboo-breaking ways are more and more frequently encountered and seen as important ways to evoke the attention required to keep the cataclysm alive in popular memory. The essays in this volume use examples predominantly from Polish, Czech and German Holocaust literature and culture to discuss this controversial subject. Topics include the poetry of concentration camp detainees, lyrical poetry about the Holocaust, poetic tendencies in narrative literature and drama, ornamental prose about the Holocaust and the devices and functions of aestheticization in Holocaust literature and culture.
