The Nature Background in the Dramas of Gerhart Hauptmann Mary Agnes Quimby, 1918

Space in America Klaus Benesch, Kerstin Schmidt, 2005

America's sense of space has always been tied to what Hayden White called the narrativization of real events. If the awe-inspiring manifestations of nature in America – Niagara Falls, Virginia's Natural Bridge, the Grand Canyon etc. – were often used as a foil for projecting utopian visions and idealizations of the nation's exceptional place among the nations of the world, the rapid technological progress and its concomitant appropriation of natural spaces served equally well as David Nye argues to promote the dominant cultural idiom of exploration and conquest. From the beginning, American attitudes towards space were thus utterly contradictory, if not paradoxical, a paradox that scholars tried to capture in such hybrid concepts as the middle landscape, Leo Marx' an engineered New Earth, Cecelia Tichi or the technological sublime. David Nye: Not only was America's concept of space paradoxical, it has always also been a contested terrain, a site of continuous social and cultural conflict. Many foundational issues in American history – the dislocation of Native and African Americans, the geopolitical implications of nation building, immigration and transmigration, the increasing division and clustering of contemporary American society etc. – involve differing ideals and notions of space. Quite literally, space and its various ideological appropriations formed the arena where America's search for identity, national, political, cultural, has been staged. If American democracy, as Frederick Jackson Turner claimed, is born of free land, then its history may well be defined as the history of the fierce struggles to gain and maintain power over both the geographical, social and political spaces of America and its concomitant narratives. The number and range of topics, interests and critical approaches of the essays gathered here open up exciting new avenues of inquiry into the tangled, contentious relations of space in America. Topics include: Theories of Space, Landscape, Nature, Technoscape, Architecture, Urban Utopia, Literature, Performance, Film, Visual Arts.

Screening the Stage Bert Cardullo, 2006

This book examines the historical, cultural and aesthetic relationships between theater and film. As we enter the 21st century, almost all artists, students and critics working in theater will have had earlier and greater exposure to film than to theater. In fact, film has become central to the way in which we perceive and formulate stories, images, ideas and sounds. At the same time, film and video occupy an increasingly significant place in theater study, both for the adaptation of plays and for the documentation and preservation of theatrical performances. Yet far too often, theater and film artists, as well as educators, make the jump from one medium to the other without being fully aware of the ways in which the qualities of each medium affect content and artistic expression This book is intended to fill such a gap by providing a theoretical and practical foundation for understanding the effect that film and drama have had and continue to have on each other's development Moreover this study provides a history of the relationship between drama and cinema starting with the pre cinematic late 19th century impulse towards capturing spectacular action on the stage and examining the artistic and commercial interaction between movies and plays both in popular and experimental work throughout the 20th century Important subjects treated in this book include stage versus screen acting the adaptation process itself the theatrical as well as the cinematic avant garde and the portability or adaptability of dramatic character

Musical Modernism and German Cinema from 1913 to 1933 Francesco Finocchiaro,2017-12-16 This book investigates the relationship between musical Modernism and German cinema It paves the way for an unorthodox path of research one which has been little explored up until now The main figures of musical Modernism from Alban Berg to Paul Hindemith and from Richard Strauss to Kurt Weill actually had a significant relationship with cinema True it was a complex and contradictory relationship in which cinema often emerged more as an aesthetic point of reference than an objective reality nonetheless the reception of the language and aesthetic of cinema had significant influence on the domain of music Between 1913 and 1933 Modernist composers exploration of cinema reached such a degree of pervasiveness and consistency as to become a true aesthetic paradigm a paradigm that sat at the very heart of the Modernist project In this insightful volume Finocchiaro shows that the creative confrontation with the avant garde medium par excellence can be regarded as a vector of musical Modernism a new aesthetic paradigm for the very process of deliberate misinterpretation creative revisionism and sometimes even intentional subversion of the Classic Romantic tradition which realized the dream of Otherness of the Modernist generation
