Anxiety in Childhood and Adolescence Frank Carter,Peter Cheesman,2015-09-25 Many counter productive behaviours in children may be anxiety related and in this book originally published in 1988 the authors proposed that a disabling level of tension and stress experienced by many children frequently goes unrecognised This often leads to failure to analyse psychological and educational problems and inappropriate ways of dealing with them This book was aimed at all professional staff working with children particularly educational and clinical psychologists and teachers The book is however written in a jargon free manner and should have wide appeal The authors show how tension reduction therapy can help children overcome many problems which may manifest themselves as disturbed behaviour poor sleep patterns anorexia school phobia or poor relationship making skills As an extreme example it is shown how significant gains can be made by research reports on the effectiveness of parent training programmes In addition a detailed guide to the practicalities of planning projects is provided together with a comprehensive directory of useful resource materials After an introductory overview the evidence on the effects on child progress of parental involvement in school activities is reviewed as is research on the impact of schemes of regular structured communication between home and school Programmes designed to train parents to accelerate the development of their children at home are considered in the subsequent chapters starting with ordinary children Much of the book reviews projects targeted on children with some sort of special educational need from children whose special needs stem from a widespread difficulty such as poverty or second language learning systematically through to children whose needs stem from rarer and more severe issues Each chapter has its own summary for ease of reader use while an overall summary chapter points out best buys and directions for future developments This volume will be of major interest to teachers psychologists social workers community health personnel community educationalists researchers many others working with parents and children and to some parents themselves This book is a re issue originally published in 1986 The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re publication
