Yuxin Ma, 2010 A most remarkable change took place in the first half of the twentieth century in China women journalists became powerful professionals who championed feminist interests discussed national politics and commented on current social events by editing independent periodicals The rise of modern journalism in China provided literate women with a powerful institution that allowed them articulate women's presence in the public space In editing women's periodicals women writers transformed themselves from traditional literary women to professional women journalists In the period of 1898-1937 when journalism became increasingly independent of and resistant to state control The women's media writings in the early decades of the twentieth century not only reveal the historical diversity and complexity of feminist issues in China but also casts light upon important feminist topics that have survived the Nationalist Communist and economic reform eras Today public debate on women's issues in Mainland China and Taiwan is shaped by past feminist discourse and uses a vocabulary and language familiar to readers of an earlier era This book examines how women journalists constructed Chinese feminism and debated patriarchy and women's roles in the newly created public space of print media during the period of 1898-1937 It studies Chinese women's public writings in periodicals edited and staffed by women journalists in four major urban centers Shanghai Tokyo Beijing and Tianjin at a time when urban society underwent major transformation and experienced drastic political social and cultural changes The revolution that overthrew the imperial government in 1911 an attack on patriarchy by cultural radicals in 1915-1919 and the advocacy of nationalism liberalism socialism and feminism by intellectuals who received a Western style education all worked together to undermine the Confucian notions of gender hierarchy spatial separation of the sexes and female domesticity among the well educated urban classes Doors of political participation public activism and production cracked open for courageous women who ventured into urban public spaces From 1898 to 1937 urban women of the upper middle and working classes became increasingly visible at modern schools as well as in career and production fields political activism and women's movements At the same time women edited independent periodicals and championed women's rights Women's periodicals provided a site where writers negotiated with nationalism patriarchy and party lines to define and defend women's interests These early feminist writings captured how activists perceived themselves and responded to the social and political changes around them This book takes a historical approach in its examination and uses gender as an analytical category to study the significance of women's press writings in the years of nation building Treating women journalists as agents of change and using their media writings as primary sources this book explores what mattered to women writers at different historical junctures as well as how they articulated values and meaning in a changing society and guided social changes in the direction they desired It delineates the transformation of women journalists from political minded Confucian gentry women to professional journalists and of women

s periodicals from representing women journalists views to addressing the concerns and needs of the majority of women It analyzes how the concepts of feminism and nationalism were embodied with different even contesting meanings at given historical junctures and how women journalists managed to advance various feminist agendas by tapping on the various meanings of nationalism This is an important book for collections in Asian studies journalism history and women s studies
