A Novel Marketplace Evan Brier, 2012-02-25 As television transformed American culture in the 1950s critics feared the influence of this newly pervasive mass medium on the nation's literature While many studies have addressed the rhetorical response of artists and intellectuals to mid twentieth century mass culture the relationship between the emergence of this culture and the production of novels has gone largely unexamined In A Novel Marketplace Evan Brier illuminates the complex ties between postwar mass culture and the making marketing and reception of American fiction Between 1948 when television began its ascendancy and 1959 when Random House became a publicly owned corporation the way American novels were produced and distributed changed considerably Analyzing a range of mid century novels including Paul Bowles's The Sheltering Sky Ray Bradbury's Fahrenheit 451 Sloan Wilson's The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit and Grace Metalious's Peyton Place Brier reveals the specific strategies used to carve out cultural and economic space for the American novel just as it seemed most under threat During this anxious historical moment the book business underwent an improbable expansion by capitalizing on an economic boom and a rising population of educated consumers and by forming institutional alliances with educators and cold warriors to promote reading as both a cultural and political good A Novel Marketplace tells how the book trade and the novelists themselves successfully positioned their works as embattled holdouts against an oppressive mass culture even as publishers formed partnerships with mass culture institutions that foreshadowed the multimedia mergers to come in the 1960s As a foil for and a partner to literary institutions mass media corporations assisted in fostering the novel's development as both culture and commodity

The Visceral Logics of Decolonization Neetu Khanna, 2020-02-28 In The Visceral Logics of Decolonization Neetu Khanna rethinks the project of decolonization by exploring a knotted set of relations between embodied experience and political feeling that she conceptualizes as the visceral Khanna focuses on the work of the Progressive Writers Association PWA a Marxist anticolonial literary group active in India between the 1930s and 1950s to show how anticolonial literature is a staging ground for exploring racialized emotion and revolutionary feeling Among others Khanna examines novels by Mulk Raj Anand Ahmed Ali and Khwaja Ahmad Abbas as well as the feminist writing of Rashid Jahan and Ismat Chughtai who each center the somatic life of the body as a fundamental site of colonial subjugation In this way decolonial action comes not solely from mental transformation but from a reconstitution of the sensorial nodes of the body The visceral Khanna contends therefore becomes a critical dimension of Marxist theories of revolutionary consciousness In tracing the contours of the visceral s role in decolonial literature and politics Khanna bridges affect and postcolonial theory in new and provocative ways
