Fremont ran as the first Republican candidate for President. From that time on through 1928, the Republicans carried the state at all presidential elections except two: that of 1892 when Cleveland defeated Harrison by a very small margin; that of 1912 when Woodrow Wilson won out because the Republican vote was divided between Taft and Theodore Roosevelt. Franklin D. Roosevelt carried the state in 1932, 1936 and 1940; the Republicans under Dewey had a majority in the election of 1944.

By the time he reached mid-career he was known throughout the nation as a champion of the common man against the undue influence in government of men of great wealth. As governor (1901-1906) he carried out reforms pretty generally opposed by capitalists and big business. During the last 19 years of his life he was in the United States Senate. In 1911 and 1912 he was a leader in the Progressive movement, and he hoped for a time to receive Republican nomination for the presidency; but the party split and Theo-
