Abstract: Being a complex type of discourse, legal discourse is realized through legal texts written in legal language, which are regarded as special-purpose texts different from other kinds of texts in respect of their text-internal and text-external properties. A great variety of legal texts reflects the diversity of law itself. As different legal texts tend to have different functional, structural and linguistic features, they are classified into genres on the basis of different criteria. The analysis of genres of legal texts contributes to the overall understanding and construction of legal discourse in general and legal texts in particular. This paper aims at the overview and discussion of genres of legal texts focusing on specific features of legal texts and criteria of the classification of legal texts into genres.

Keywords: legal discourse, legal language, legal texts, genres, specific features, classification.

Information Technology and Law Wojciech Cyrul,2013-09-01 This book is addressed to all who are interested in the interplay between Information Technology and law It constitutes the result of a project whose aim was to bring together computer scientists legal theoreticians and legal practitioners and to prompt them to a common reflection on the implementation of Information Technologies into legal practice on regulations the implementation may require and on potential changes it brings into the legal domain The book consists of selected essays presenting and discussing from various perspectives how IT has been used to make and to communicate laws and how the new potential provided by the technology has already changed or can affect in the future both legal institutions and traditional legal practices Participation in Crime Falling within the Subject-Matter Jurisdiction of the International Criminal Court Aleksandra Nieprzecka,2024-06-18 This book centres on the forms of participation in crime set out in the Rome Statute but it is definitely not a simple repetition or summary of the views expressed in the ICC case law Instead the work critically elaborates on the ICC practice and presents a theoretical and dogmatic description of modes of criminal responsibility that might be found in the Statute. The element of novelty is however brought about by the methodology which encompasses a normative analysis based on the distinction between the categories of sanctioned and sanctioning norms initially introduced by K Binding in the German doctrine but for the purposes of this book adjusted to the structure of international core crimes and reconciling them with the grounds for criminal responsibility as such. Moreover the work does not avoid bold assertions concerning the norms of participation in crime concerning inter alia the concept of spectator or public approval and or direct incitement to genocide. This approach should be of particular interest to those who are under the impression that international criminal law is entangled in a multiplicity of labels and the judicial practice sometimes adopts the same requirements without any further thought or analysis. The book aims to trigger a broader debate on the merits and rationale of participation in crime and encourages readers to rethink some of the concepts developed within judicial practice. The work also takes into consideration the ICC case law in particular some tendencies that might be inferred from the separate and concurring opinions in the Ntaganda case. All in all it endeavours to reflect on the content of Article 25 3 and 28 of the Rome Statute and provide an answer on how ICC practice might and perhaps should evolve further.

Aleksandra Nieprzecka Ph D is a member of the Polish Bar Association in Krak w and worked as a principal researcher in the project concerning the model of participation in crime adopted in the Rome Statute carried out at the Jagiellonian University in Krak w where she finished her doctoral studies according to the co tutelle agreement between the Jagiellonian University in Krak w and the University of Hamburg.

For Adult Users Only Susan Gubar, Joan Hoff, 1989 sophisticated provocative and thoroughly documented. Strongly recommended. Choice a welcome addition to the literature on this contentious issue. Journal of Communication. This book does an excellent job of portraying the complexity of the legal and philosophical debates among women about the status and effects of pornography and it is an important interdisciplinary scholarly contribution for that reason. Signs. In an attempt to advance our society's debate on pornography beyond the current political and legal stalemate these essays examine explicit portrayals of violence in pornography from multidisciplinary perspectives: history, literary criticism, religious studies, ethics, political science, film studies, law and psychology.

The Routledge Handbook of Translation Studies Carmen Millán, Francesca Bartrina, 2013. The Routledge Handbook of Translation Studies provides a comprehensive state of the art account of the complex field of translation studies. Written by leading specialists from around the world, this volume brings together authoritative original articles on pressing issues including the current status of the field and its interdisciplinary nature, the problematic definition of the object of study, the various theoretical frameworks, the research methodologies available.
