Bulliet,2005 Richard W Bulliet has long been a leading figure in the study of human animal relations and in his newest work Hunters Herders and Hamburgers he offers a sweeping and engaging perspective on this dynamic relationship from prehistory to the present By considering the shifting roles of donkeys camels cows and other domesticated animals in human society as well as their place in the social imagination Bulliet reveals the different ways various cultures have reinforced symbolized and rationalized their relations with animals Bulliet identifies and explores four stages in the history of the human animal relationship separation predomesticity domesticity and postdomesticity He begins with the question of when and why humans began to consider themselves distinct from other species and continues with a fresh look at how a few species became domesticated He demonstrates that during the domestic era many species fell from being admired and even worshipped to being little more than raw materials for various animal product industries Throughout the work Bulliet discusses how social and technological developments and changing philosophical religious and aesthetic viewpoints have shaped attitudes toward animals Our relationship to animals continues to evolve in the twenty first century Bulliet writes We are today living through a new watershed in human animal relations one that appears likely to affect our material social and imaginative lives as profoundly as did the original emergence of domestic species The United States Britain and a few other countries are leading a move from domesticity marked by nearly universal familiarity with domestic species to an era of postdomesticity in which dependence on animal products continues but most people have no contact with producing animals Elective vegetarianism and the animal liberation movement have combined with new attitudes toward animal science pets and the presentation of animals in popular culture to impart a distinctive moral psychological and spiritual tone to postdomestic life

Recognising and Responding to Animal Emotion in a Shared World Vicki Hutton,2023-11-16 How is it that depending on the setting the same cat can be perceived as a homeless annoyance a potential research subject or a thinking and feeling family member The answer is bound up in our perception of non human animals capacity to experience emotions and this book draws on contemporary evidence based research observations interviews and anecdotal case scenarios to explore the growing knowledge base around animal emotion Acknowledging that animals can experience feelings directly affects the way that they are perceived and treated in many settings and the author explores the implications when humans apply or ignore this knowledge selectively between species and within species This information is presented within the unique context of a proposed hierarchy of perceived non human animals emotional abilities often based on human interpretation of the animal s emotional capacity with examples of how this manifests at an emotional spiritual and moral level Implications for specific groups living with caring for or working with non human animals are examined making the book of particular interest to those working studying or researching in the veterinary professions animal ethics law and welfare and zoology biology and animal science This book will also be fascinating reading for anyone interested in simply learning more about the animals with whom we share this planet For some readers it will validate the reciprocal emotional bond they feel for living creatures For others it will raise questions about the moral treatment of sentient non human beings breaking down the human
