Legends From Bensons Valley:

Frank Hardy Jenny Hocking, 2005 Who Shot George Kirkland? Frank J. Hardy, 1981 Dorothy Hewett Bruce Bennett, 1995 Dorothy Hewett is one of Australia's most controversial authors. She has created legends of glittering girls and their fates in her plays, poems and novels. She has challenged religious, sexual, political and literary conventions and been blamed for moral decline. Topics investigated in this book include Hewett's achievements in drama and poetry, her relationship to the political Left and to feminism, the roles of place, myth and desire in an understanding of her work and the construction of her reputation by journalists, critics and photographers.

Climatological Data, California United States. Environmental Data Service, 1958 Climatic Summary of the United States United States. Weather Bureau, 1956 What's in the Water Velma Benson Wilson, 2011-11 To most people one's mother is the first person they ever form a lifelong bond with. She is the source of life and nourishment, love and compassion, and the person who provides the foundation for an individual's worldview and core values. Author and veteran sociologist Velma Benson Wilson pays tribute to her mother, a remarkable woman born Fannie Bradley, through a book titled What's In The Water. Imagine a mother of seventeen living children, all single births, and the majority born during the tumultuous times of the 1950s and 60s in rural Mississippi. How did she balance and cope with their spiritual, educational, financial and overall upbringing to insure that all became productive members of this society? Fannie Bradley had tenacious faith, resilience and perseverance in overcoming adversities and pain that would have made most an indignant human being. Fannie's mother was mentally retarded; she had no stable father figure or family and an elementary education. Although she only lived to be 57 years of age, Fannie's legacy of love and parental principles are indelible in each of her living seventeen offspring.
