Legitimizing New Religions:

Legitimizing New Religions James R. Lewis, 2003 James R. Lewis has written the first book to deal explicitly with the issue of how emerging religions legitimate themselves. He contends that a new religion has at least four different though overlapping areas where legitimacy is a concern: making converts, maintaining followers, shaping public opinion, and appeasing government authorities. The legitimacy that new religions seek in the public realm is primarily that of social acceptance. Mainstream society's acknowledgement of a religion as legitimate means recognizing its status as a genuine religion and thus recognizing its right to exist. Through a series of wide-ranging case studies, Lewis explores the diversification of legitimation strategies of new religions as well as the tactics that their critics use to delegitimize such groups. Cases include the Movement for Spiritual Inner Awareness, Native American prophet religions, spiritualism, the Church of Christ, Scientist, Scientology, Church of Satan, Heaven's Gate, Unitarianism, Hindu reform movements, and Soka Gakkai, a new Buddhist sect. Since many of the issues raised with respect to newer religions can be extended to the legitimation strategies deployed by established religions, this book sheds an intriguing new light on classic questions about the origin of all religions.

Controversial New Religions James R. Lewis, Jesper Aagaard Petersen, 2005 Featuring the new religious movements (NRMs) that have attracted the most scholarly attention over the past few years, this text includes groups such as the Branch Davidians, Heaven's Gate, and Falun Gong, explaining their ethos and beliefs as well as examining more controversial accusations.

Historicizing "Tradition" in the Study of Religion Steven Engler, Gregory Price Grieve, 2012-02-13 This collection of essays analyzes tradition as a category in the historical and comparative study of religion. The book questions the common assumption that tradition is simply the passing down or imitation of prior practices and discourses. It begins from the premise that many traditions are at least in part social fabrications, often deliberately serving particular ideological ends. Individual chapters examine a wide variety of historical periods and religions: Congolese Buddhist, Christian, Confucian, Cree, Esoteric Hawaiian, Hindu, Islamic, Jewish, New Religious Movement, and Shinto. Different sections of the book consider tradition's relation to three sets of issues: legitimation and authority, agency and identity, modernity and the West.

New Religions Carol S. Matthews, 2009 Discusses eight new religious movements throughout the world, including the Baha'i faith, the New Kadampa Tradition, and Raelians.

Academic Advocacy for New Religious Movements Benjamin Beit-Hallahmi, 2025-03-21 This book explores the intersection of advocacy and academic practice within the social sciences, focusing on the ethical dimensions and potential consequences of researchers engaging in political action on behalf of the groups they study. Investigating the ethical and practical implications of advocacy in academic work, specifically within the social sciences, it examines how scholars guided by their research and vision for social change engage politically to support the groups they study. The book addresses the debate surrounding academic advocacy: is it harmful or a necessary pursuit? Through a detailed study of a historical advocacy movement, it analyzes the global campaign to gain legitimacy for new
