STEM majors in higher education and it shares compelling testimonies from Black STEM professionals that will help inspire the next generation of Black scientists and engineers. Most experts agree that America's success depends on having a workforce that is highly prepared in STEM areas. Unfortunately, students of color continue to be underrepresented in higher education and specifically in completing degrees and entering careers within the STEM fields. This book supports African American students as well as all students who are interested in STEM careers, providing information on the top colleges with STEM-related programs, particularly those that best support racially diverse students, practical advice for preparing for entrance into STEM programs, and inspirational stories of successful African Americans in STEM-related careers. Authored by three educators expert in the areas of academic development of African Americans and minorities, STEM and Higher Education: The African American Student's Guide to STEM Careers focuses on preparing Black students for STEM from K-12 through graduate school. Readers will more fully appreciate the importance of STEM, recognize why more Black students need to be more actively engaged in these disciplines, and understand how to prepare Black students for success in STEM throughout the educational pipeline.

Contemporary Mental Health Issues Among African Americans Debra A. Harley, John M. Dillard, 2005. Encyclopedia of Education: AACSB-Commerce James W. Guthrie, 2003.

Black Sons to Mothers M. Christopher Brown, James Earl Davis, 2000. Black Sons to Mothers is the critical site where African American male scholars explore the meanings and connections of the lives of Black boys/men. This book offers literary, scholarly, and personal space to interrogate the seemingly elusive intersection of race and gender. Each chapter in the book is offered in one of two voices: one that speaks to teachers as cultural workers and one that represents individual transformation into the cultural space of mothering. This book's intent is to both question Black men's constructions as sons, cultural offspring, and to engage in the project of representing mothering as cultural work and specifically the role of Black men in this work. Because the discourse on the role performance of Black boys/men is steeped in the hegemonic rhetoric of traditional constructions of masculinity, that discourse fails to sensibly represent and elaborate on the diversity and complexity of their lives and relations, particularly in the academic enterprise. As such, Black Sons to Mothers attempts to recontextualize the discourse surrounding the cultural places where the identities of Black boys/men are shaped and explores how the politics and constructions of manhood are informed and enforced in school settings. In Black Sons to Mothers, the research subject of extrapolation is the oppressed and/or marginalized group. In opposition to deficit model inquiry, the research on white males is not being applied to Black boys/men, but the research on Black boys/men is being applied to all students. The Black male student is at the center of a discourse that is not about a pathology, dysfunction, at-riskness, or special education. This book's discourse is epigenetic in that it advances a more complex understanding of schooling and cultural work. This understanding is not solely about Black boys/men but about the cornerstone of cultural work: unlearning.
