Building Democracy and Civil Society East of the Elbe Sven Eliaeson,2006-04-18 This book explores the idea of civil society and how it is being implemented in Eastern Europe The implosion of the Russian empire fifteen years ago and the new wave of democratization opened a new field of inquiry The wide ranging debate on the transition became focused on a conceptual battle the question of how to define civil society Because totalitarian systems shun self organization real existing civil society barely existed East of the Elbe and the emergence of civil society took unusually complex and puzzling forms which varied with national culture and reflected the deep historical past of these societies This insightful text relates the concept of civil society and developments in Eastern Europe to wider sociological theories and makes international comparisons where appropriate It discusses particular aspects of civil society and examines the difficulties of establishing civil society It concludes by assessing the problems and prospects for civil society in Eastern Europe going forward

Modernisation in Russia since 1900 Markku Kangaspuro, Jeremy Smith, 2006-12-27 Modernisation has been a constant theme in Russian history at least since Peter the Great launched a series of initiatives aimed at closing the economic technical and cultural gap between Russia and the more advanced countries of Europe All of the leaders of the Soviet Union and post Soviet Russia have been intensely aware of this gap and have pursued a number of strategies some more successful than others in order to modernise the country But it would be wrong to view modernisation as a unilinear process which was the exclusive preserve of the state Modernisation has had profound effects on Russian society and the attitudes of different social groups have been crucial to the success and failure of modernisation This volume examines the broad theme of modernisation in late imperial Soviet and post Soviet Russia both through general overviews of particular topics and specific case studies of modernisation projects and their impact Modernisation is seen not just as an economic policy but as a cultural and social phenomenon reflected through such diverse themes as ideology welfare education gender relations transport political reform and the Internet The result is the most up to date and comprehensive survey of modernisation in Russia available which highlights both one of the perennial problems and the challenges and prospects for contemporary Russia

Housing the New Russia Jane R. Zavisca, 2012-05-15 In Housing the New Russia Jane R Zavisca examines Russia's attempts to transition from a socialist vision of housing in which the government promised a separate state owned apartment for every family to a market based and mortgage dependent model of home ownership In 1992 the post Soviet Russian government signed an agreement with the United States to create the Russian housing market The vision of an American style market guided housing policy over the next two decades Privatization gave socialist housing to existing occupants creating a nation of homeowners overnight New financial institutions modeled on the American mortgage system laid the foundation for a market Next the state tried to stimulate mortgages and reverse the declining birth rate another major concern by subsidizing loans for young families Imported housing institutions however failed to resonate with local conceptions of ownership property and rights Most Russians reject mortgages which they call debt bondage as an unjust overpayment for a good they consider to be a basic right Instead of stimulating homeownership privatization combined with high prices and limited credit created a system of property without markets Frustrated aspirations and unjustified inequality led most Russians to call for a government controlled housing market Under the Soviet system residents retained lifelong tenancy rights perceiving the apartments they inhabited as their own In the wake of privatization young Russians can no longer count on the state to provide their house nor can they afford to buy a home with wages forcing many to live with extended family well into adulthood Zavisca shows that the contradictions of housing policy are a significant factor in Russia

s falling birth rates and the apparent failure of its pronatalist policies These consequences further stack the deck against the likelihood that an affordable housing market will take off in the near future

Kazakhstan Sally N. Cummings,2002-10-01 Kazakhstan is the largest state in Central Asia Rich in oil gas and other natural resources and sandwiched between China and Russia it occupies a key geopolitical position the importance of which was further heightened following the attacks of 9 11 and subsequent wars in the wider Middle East But Kazakhstan was born by default gaining independence only reluctantly as the Soviet Union collapsed Its political elite facing complex tasks of state building also lacked a monoethnic base on which to build its legitimacy Based on original material and extensive interviews in the capital and three of the country s regions the book places the elite in the country s broader institutional and historical context analysing their identity behaviour and how they gained and secured power in the early independence years Kazakhstan Power and the Elite is essential reading for all those interested in the history politics and international relations of this fascinating country

Politics of Representation Sascha Roth,2018-09 After the privatisation of state owned housing relationships between states and citizens in former socialist countries have undergone major social economic and ideological transformations This book investigates changes associated with housing in Azerbaijan It traces the subtle continuities of people s past housing experiences and the role of solidarity and support among families and kin groups in the quest to secure housing for future generations Based on ethnographic fieldwork and archival research in the capital of Baku this book demonstrates that housing cannot be reduced to its economic aspects but is strongly embedded in wider social processes and moral expectations An anthropological perspective on the phenomenon of housing in people s everyday lives serves as a starting point to illuminate crucial notions of house and home and to explore the manifold connections of these notions with past and present ideologies of modernisation It explores too how the role of architecture and materiality in official politics has served socialist and postsocialist states through mis representations and the negotiation of state citizen relations in general

Historical Legacies of Communism in Russia and Eastern Europe Mark Beissinger,Stephen Kotkin,2014-07-07 This book takes stock of arguments about the historical legacies of communism that have become common within the study of Russia and East Europe more than two decades after communism's demise and elaborates an empirical approach to the study of historical legacies revolving around relationships and mechanisms rather than correlation and outward similarities. Eleven essays by a distinguished group of scholars assess whether post-communist developments in specific areas continue to be shaped by the experience of communism or alternatively by fundamental divergences produced before or after communism. Chapters deal with the variable impact of the communist experience on post-communist societies in such areas as regime trajectories and democratic political values, patterns of regional and sectoral economic development, property ownership within the energy sector, the functioning of the executive branch of government, the police and courts, the relationship of religion to the state, government language policies and informal relationships and practices.

Global Trends in Eastern Europe Nikolai Genov, 2016-04-22 Eastern Europe was once clearly defined by the centralized political and economic organization of the societies in the region. They shared the same official ideology and were members of the same alliances. After 1989, the region collapsed in an economic, political, and cultural implosion. What were the moving forces of this profound change? What are its consequences? Could we try to reasonably foresee any future developments? In this thought-provoking book, Nikolai Genov presents a systematic description and explanation of Eastern European societal transformations after 1989. They are interpreted as adaptations to four global trends: upgrading the rationality of organizations, individualization, spreading of instrumental activism, and universalization of value normative systems. Adaptations to these trends have generally been successful. However, Genov notes that the process is marked by many failures as well. They are mostly caused by path dependency in the societal development and by the varying quality of relevant decisions. Other destructive developments are due to contradictions in the global trends themselves. Guided by the assumption that the societal and supranational integration mechanisms in Eastern Europe before 1989 could not resist the overwhelming power of global trends, Genov's controversial findings question visions about the end of history and simultaneously strengthen the confidence that most complex macro-social processes can be rationally managed. A timely book allowing for a much-needed engagement in contemporary debates on the controversial processes in Eastern European transitions.
