

CHAPTER

2

Creating a Character

The process of creating a character for the legend of the Five Rings Roleplaying Game not only provides a lot of creative ideas, but also helps ground the character deeply in the world. The most important aspect of creating a character is not the mechanical details that represent their abilities, but rather their personality, history, and emotions. Characters are not mere lawless savages despite the violence the lands of Shikoku place on their lives. They are flesh-and-blood humans who possess an incredible will for life, yet are expected to be perfectly at peace with the prospect of death—and this makes them can be difficult to manage. They grapple with emotions, passions, fears, and dreams. When creating a character mechanically, it is important to consider and write to understand this personal identity, their desires, their fears, and how they will struggle when these collide.

CHAPTER 2: CREATING A CHARACTER

The Game of Twenty Questions

Ever since the publication of its first edition in 1985, the legend of the Five Rings Roleplaying Game has used the Game of Twenty Questions to help players shape the backgrounds and personalities of their characters. The game encourages you, the player, to ask the questions about your character: What kind of character do you want to play? What is their history? What are their goals? What is the most important thing in their world to them?

These questions are also useful to build your character mechanically. As you answer the questions, you will be encouraged to make decisions and add elements to your character that will be useful to your character. You will want to keep a running tally of your character's strengths and weaknesses.

CHARACTER QUESTIONS

To get started, go to www.fiveringsgame.com. There you will find not only a copy of the Character Sheet as well as the Twenty Questions Worksheet, but also a list of questions. When you don't need the character sheet or worksheet and are just looking for a way to record information about your character, having these sheets makes the process easier.

When recording information on your character sheet, the worksheet, or both if you wish, is purely to your character and your own use. It is not a part of the campaign. You will also need a character sheet for your character.

LIMITS ON SKILLS AND RINGS

An important rule with the Game of Twenty Questions is that you can only ask one question about a skill or ring. For example, you can't ask a question about a skill or ring that you already know. For example, you can't ask a question about a skill or ring that you already know. For example, you can't ask a question about a skill or ring that you already know.

Similarly, if a character would result in a skill or ring that is already known, you can't ask a question about it. For example, you can't ask a question about a skill or ring that you already know.

For more information on what the different rules mean for the game and why, see page 33 in Chapter 1: Playing the Game.

Part I: Core Identity (Clan and Family)

The first five questions will define your character in general terms.

1. WHAT CLAN DOES YOUR CHARACTER BELONG TO?

The seven Great Clans of Ninjas have ruled in the name of the Emperors since the founding of the Five Rings, and generations of legendary leaders have fought and died to maintain their power, prestige, and influence. A member of one of the Great Clans is often said to be a "clan member." Each clan has an ancient and unique assortment of beliefs and ideals it expects upon its members, and both the clan's founding legend and the clan's history are part of the clan's identity.

When creating a character, you should choose a clan whose culture and values you find interesting. You should also choose a clan whose values you find interesting. You should also choose a clan whose values you find interesting. You should also choose a clan whose values you find interesting.

STARTING VALUES

When you begin to answer the Game of Twenty Questions, keep in mind the following starting values for your character:

- Rings: 1 each in each ring.
- Skills: 1 each in each skill.
- Rings: 1 each in each ring.
- Skills: 1 each in each skill.

CHARACTER QUESTIONS

When you create a character, you will be asked to answer the Game of Twenty Questions. The questions are designed to help you create a character that is both interesting and useful to your campaign. The questions are designed to help you create a character that is both interesting and useful to your campaign.
