Austin, 2002-04-30 Identifies five critical issues with which higher education institutions in the developing world must grapple as they respond to changing external contexts offers examples of institutional responses to these issues and considers these within a systems perspective which recognizes that each response impacts how institutions handle other critical issues Half of the students enrolled in higher education worldwide live in developing countries Yet in many developing countries government and education leaders express serious concerns about the ability of their colleges and universities to effectively respond to the pressures posed by changing demographics new communication technologies shifts in national political environments and the increasing interconnectedness of national economies This book identifies five critical issues with which higher education institutions in the developing world must grapple as they respond to these changing contexts seeking a new balance in government university relationships coping with autonomy managing expansion while preserving equity raising quality and controlling costs addressing new pressures for accountability and supporting academic staff in new roles These papers offer examples of institutional responses and consider these within a systems perspective that recognizes that each response has a rippling effect impacting institutions responses to other critical issues Only as government and education leaders understand the interwoven nature of the problems now facing colleges and universities and the interconnections among the intended solutions they seek to implement can they offer effective leadership that strengthens the quality and improves the relevance of higher education in their countries World Bank Financing of Education Phillip W. Jones, 2007-02-12 Based on detailed analysis of thousands of confidential World Bank documents this book demonstrates that the World Bank lies at the centre of the major changes in global education of our time It outlines the evolution of World Bank lending policies in education and assesses the policy impact of the Bank s educational projects looking at how it has shaped the economic and social policies of many governments including policies that affect education been an influential proponent of the rapid expansion of formal education systems around the world financing much of that expansion been instrumental in forging those policies that see education as a precursor to modernisation served as a major purveyor of Western ideas about how education and the economy are or should be related Following on from the success of the first edition this revised edition covers topical issues of globalisation and looks into the political debate concerning aid to developing countries It will be of enormous value to those studying or working in educational policy in developing countries international organisations and financial institutions and aid agencies Higher Education: Handbook of Theory and Research J.C. Collins,2011 This study is founded on several case studies which examine countries including Thailand and Uganda where impact analyses were done on World Bank loans dedicated to the expansion of higher education in science and technology These two countries were chosen because they are in two different regions with dissimilar colonial histories and their loans are relatively recent A case study on crossborder university partnerships also provides a model which other universities and development agencies may utilize when positioning higher education as a poverty reduction strategy Delivering extensive frontline information on education international development and the challenges that follow this book also includes a review of poverty reduction strategies as well as a theoretical framework that covers colonialism development and indigenous knowledge This research conducted on the World Bank and the impact of its policies in two developing countries offers primary source information on work related to the topic A major portion of the book looks at the effort put forth by U S universities in partnership with universities in developing countries for the purpose of using knowledge creation and dissemination as a poverty reduction strategy The policy recommendations presented are useful for international development agencies like the World Bank and the model demonstrated can be used by universities interested in cross border partnerships across lines of economic development This book will be invaluable to educational researchers qualitative and ethnographic researchers international development specialists and scholars in international education Making the World Global Isaac A. Kamola,2019-06-07 Following World War II the American government and philanthropic foundations fundamentally remade American universities into sites for producing knowledge about the world as a collection of distinct nation states As neoliberal reforms took hold in the 1980s visions of the world made popular within area studies and international studies found themselves challenged by ideas and educational policies that originated in business schools and international financial institutions Academics within these institutions reimagined the world instead as a single global market and higher education as a commodity to be bought and sold By the 1990s American universities embraced this language of globalization and globalization eventually became the organizing logic of higher education In Making the World Global Isaac A Kamola examines how the relationships among universities the American state philanthropic organizations and international financial institutions created the conditions that made it possible to imagine the world as global Examining the Center for International Studies Harvard Business School the World Bank the Social Science Research Council and NYU Kamola

demonstrates that how we imagine the world is always symptomatic of the material relations within which knowledge is produced The Practice of International Development Jerrold Keilson, Michael Gubser, 2017-09-22 Development analysts tend to give short shrift to the seemingly minor bureaucratic hitches faced by practitioners those who design manage implement and evaluate aid projects Often critical of foreign aid either for its apparent ineffectiveness at alleviating poverty or its purported neocolonial implications the academic literature rarely acknowledges the experiences and pressures faced by practitioners themselves as they implement aid funded development projects the meetings paperwork negotiations site visits financial transactions logistical arrangements interviews program activities and beneficiary interactions that keep projects running And yet the impact of aid projects and indeed the impact of development itself often grows out of the daily activities and personal interactions of development practitioners This unique book considers challenges from the perspective of development practitioners who confront technical managerial political theoretical and moral quandaries on a daily basis With chapters written by expert practitioners on different aspects of design and management of international development activities this book examines real issues and navigates the often contradictory demands of local development needs including international donor imperatives limited financial resources time information and assurance of results the competing pulls of administrative efficiency and the desire to alleviate suffering It also gives readers access to the crucial but little heard voices of those who spend their professional lives designing and managing foreign aid projects offering insight into what did or did not work on projects they have managed implemented or evaluated These insights do not seek to identify universally right or wrong ways of doing development instead they highlight pros and cons associated with various approaches and decisions This book provides valuable insights for students and others interested in a development career encourages practitioners to engage in reflection and persuades researchers to further consider the influence of practice on project success or failure

Funding Higher Education in Sub-Saharan Africa D. Teferra, 2013-10-08 Virtually all countries in the world are struggling to provide the necessary resources to Higher Education The challenges are particularly complex for economically poor countries in Africa which have recorded massive expansion in the past decade This book analyzes the state of funding and financing higher education in Sub Saharan Africa Changing Times Martin Chick, 2019-12-05 This is a study of how and why the British economy has changed since 1951 It covers the Golden Age of 1945 1973 when unemployment was below one million when governments built millions of council houses and flats when electricity telephones and gas were supplied by nationalised monopolies when income and wealth inequality were narrowing and when the UK was not a member of the European Economic Community Moving through the inflation rising unemployment and rapid contraction of the manufacturing industry from the mid 1970s Changing Times examines the transfer of assets which was effected in the privatisation of public housing and nationalised industries from the early 1980s The role of the State changed as public investment fell The financing of old age care of state pensions and of the National Health Service became of increasing concern and were less politically amenable to the approach of using private finance the Private Finance Initiative and tuition fees to fund former public obligations Changes were made to the system of taxation but public expenditure changed little as a share of national income although the government now built little Difficulties emerged in ensuring adequate housing for a growing population and uncertainty grew as to where future investment in necessities like electricity supply would come from Having narrowed in the Golden Age inequality of income and wealth widened Environmental concerns also grew from the local smogs of the 1950s through the concern with acid rain from the 1960s to the current global concern with climate change The financial crash of 2008 and the decision to Brexit in the referendum of 2016 reduced economic growth and highlighted the extent of economic change since 1951 This is a study of that change Cost-benefit Analysis in Educational Planning Maureen Woodhall,1980 Resources in Education ,1997 Women and Educational Development Mukta Gupta,2000 The Public Role in Private Post-secondary Education Åke Blomqvist,Emmanuel Jimenez,1989 Should private educational institutions be encouraged through financial incentives and constraints to play more role in post secondary education What public policies subsidies and regulations should be used to influence them An Economic Evaluation Of Higher Education With Reference To Self Financed Engineering Colleges In Tamil Nadu Siva Gurunathan S, Development, Education and Learning in Sri Lanka Angela W.
