since Wanda's husband threw himself off the top floor landing of their house in Primrose Hill. Hers is a story of abandonment. In 1939 she lost her mother at the railway station as the family fought its way onto the last train out of Warsaw. She has spent her life determined never to let go of anything again. Her husband's presence has been resurrected in a shrine out on the landing with his shoes left in the same spot where he took them off that night. The family reunions that mark the anniversary of his death have turned into a battlefield on which those still imprisoned in her claustrophobic grip try vainly to escape. But this, the twentieth reunion, is destined to be different. Wanda is about to find out why her husband left her so dramatically, the shocking secret that her sister Mitzi has held onto all these years and the unwitting role played in the tragedy by Wanda's elder son, the brilliant wayward Schopenhauer scholar Gregor Silver. Author and painter Lynn Bushell lives in France on the west coast of the Normandy Peninsula, which provides the subject for most of her paintings. Schopenhauer's Porcupines is her third novel.

Anne would swear that either she or her sister Mary Alice were switched at birth, except they were both born at home. Flashy, flirtatious Mary Alice is one foot taller, twice the body weight of Patricia Anne, and three times as likely to do something completely off the wall. But now Mary Alice's impulsive behavior has landed them both in the Birmingham jail. It all begins with a call from their good friend Mitzi Phizer, who's starting an investment club, kind of a Beardstown Ladies group. Patricia Anne is willing to make a small conservative investment in a thriving chain of HMOs. Mary Alice is hot to trot to put her money on

Viagra But before the club idea gets off the ground the sisters spot Mitzi's supposedly faithful husband in a chummy little huddle with a redhead and the next thing they know Arthur is accused of murdering the mystery woman Nothing about the whole sordid story fits the kind gently Arthur and Patricia Anne is doing her best to console her good friends But when their house catches on fire and Arthur is shot in a place that won't allow him to even sit down at his own murder trial the sisters know they have to stand up for the poor fellow And that means checking out everyone from low down cads to highbrow bank presidents to find a no good gun toting arsonist who believes big money is to kill for
